- (I.) The Fund has been reported to the Financial Supervisory Commission ("FSC") or its appointed institution for effective registration. However, this does not indicate that the Fund is risk-free. The past performance of the Management Company does not guarantee the minimum investment return of the Fund. While exercising the duty of care of a good administrator, the Management Company is not responsible for the Fund's profit or loss, nor does it guarantee a minimum return. Investors should carefully read the Fund's prospectus before subscribing.
- (II.) From the Fund's establishment date until its listing date (excluding that date), the Management Company will not accept subscriptions or redemptions of the Fund's beneficiary units. The listing and trading of the Fund's beneficiary certificates should be conducted in accordance with the relevant regulations governing the securities trading market.
- (III.) Since the Fund's establishment date, investment allocation has been based on the tracked benchmark index. Fluctuations in the price of the Fund's investment portfolio components will affect the performance of the Fund's net asset value. The issuance price of beneficiary units subscribed by investors before the establishment date of the Fund (excluding that date) may differ from the price at which the Fund is listed. Investors subscribing for the Fund shall bear the risk of discount/premium arising from fluctuations in the price of the Fund's net assets value during the period from the Fund's establishment date to the listing date. The secondary market trading price of the Fund after listing may also differ from the net asset value of the Fund at the close of business on each business day, which may result in the risk of discount/premium. The trading price of beneficiary certificates of the Funds after listing shall be subjected to the relevant regulations of the Taiwan Stock Exchange ("TWSE").
- (IV.) The Fund aims to track the performance of the return of the benchmark index. Fluctuations in the prices of the component stocks of the benchmark index will affect the movement of the benchmark index. The Fund's net asset value is also subject to the risk of significant fluctuations when the prices of the component stocks of the benchmark index fluctuate or change significantly.

- (V.) Although the Fund aims to track the benchmark index, the following factors may cause the Fund's return to deviate from the return of the benchmark index and the direction of such deviation is unpredictable.
1. The Fund may be required to make daily adjustments to the Fund's exposure as a result of, among other things, redemptions or the maintenance of the required exposure ratio. Therefore, the net value of the Fund will be affected by fluctuations in the prices of securities or futures traded, transaction costs, other necessary expenses of the Fund (e.g., management fees, custodian fees, listing fees, index licensing fees, etc.), or the Fund's overall exposure to the Fund, which may cause the Fund's return to deviate from its investment objective.
2. The Fund's portfolio correlation with the benchmark index will be affected by factors such as the correlation between the securities or futures held by the Fund and the benchmark index. In addition, if the Fund holds futures in its portfolio, the price discovery function of futures may result in a different price response to market information and long/short trends than the corresponding securities. Therefore, when certain information is available in the market, the net asset value of the Fund will be subject to price fluctuations in futures and securities invested in, which may cause the Fund's return to deviate from the investment objective. Further description of the Fund's investment strategy, please refer to [I. Fund Overview] (I). x of the Prospectus.
- (VI.) For subscriptions of the Fund from the listing date (inclusive), the Management Company will collect the subscription amount from the subscribers in advance. The subscription amount, as outlined in the Prospectus, will be based on the "Net Asset Value Equivalent per Subscription/Redemption Base" set out in the Fund's "List of Cash Subscription/Redemption Dates" plus an additional 110% to 120%. However, in the event of consecutive vacations in the Taiwan securities market, the aforesaid proportion may be adjusted by the Management Company on a proactive basis after the announcement, and the proportion stipulated by the Fund shall be restored within three business days after the adjustment.
- (VII.) The investment risks of the Fund include, but are not limited to, those described in (6) above. Investors should read the Prospectus and ensure that they fully understand the risks and characteristics of the Fund before trading. Further description of the restrictions on the use of the Fund and the disclosure of investment risks, please refer to pages 21 to 24 and 34 to 46.
- (VIII.) The Fund is classified as RR5 for its risk and return level. This classification reflects market price volatility risk under general market conditions and cannot cover all risks, and should not be used as the sole basis for investment. Investors should still be aware of the individual risks of the funds they invest in.
- (IX.) The Fund's distribution rate is not indicative of the Fund's rate of return and past distribution rates are not indicative of future distribution rates. The Fund's dividend may be paid from the reserve for income equalization of the Fund, and any portion that involves a charge against the reserve for income equalization may result in a reduction in the amount of the initial investment. The components of the Fund's net asset value can be found on the Management Company's website.
- (X.) After the listing date, the Fund will provide an intraday estimated net asset value for investors' reference during Taiwan securities trading hours, subject to the TWSE's regulation. The calculation of the estimated net asset value may differ from the actual net asset value due to the difference in timing and source of information. Investors should be aware of the risk of inaccuracy between the estimated net asset value and the actual net asset value. The estimated intraday net value provided by the Management Company during the trading hours of Taiwan securities is for investors' reference only and the actual net value should be based on the daily net value as finally announced by the Company.
- (XI.) The investment in the Fund is not protected by mechanisms such as deposit insurance, Taiwan Insurance Guaranty Fund or other protection mechanisms. Investors must assume their own profits or losses.

Investments may result in loss of part or all of the capital. Investors must assume their own profits or losses.

(Note: This English translation is provided for reference only and might not exactly reflect the true meaning and full text of the original language.)

be included as component stocks in the benchmark index at the time of their initial listing.

- (ii.) Benchmark index: TIP FactSet Taiwan AI 50 Index
- ix. Brief indication of fundamental investment policies and scope of investment.
 - (i.) The Management Company should aim to diversify risk and ensure the safety of the fund by tracking the performance of the benchmark index as the objective of the Fund's investment portfolio management. In accordance with principles of integrity and professional management, the Fund will be invested in securities within the ROC and will adhere to the following regulations
 1. The Fund adopts an indexing strategy based on full replication to track the performance of benchmark index "TIP FactSet Taiwan AI 50 Index", with the objective of achieving the performance of the benchmark index as closely as possible, after deducting various necessary expenses from the Fund. To achieve the aforementioned operational objective, the Fund has been tracking the benchmark index since the date of listing, and the total amount invested in the components of the benchmark index should reach 90% (inclusive) of the Fund's net asset value. Also, to align with the Fund's need for index tracking and requirements for capital allocation, the Fund may engage in other securities-related products transactions and invest in other securities so that the overall exposure of the investment portfolio can match 100% of the Fund's net asset scale as closely as possible.
 2. To align with the Fund's tracking objects and capital allocation needs, the Management Company may use the Fund to engage in transactions of futures, options, or futures options derived from stock indices, stocks, or ETF, and other securities-related products approved by the FSC. Such transactions must comply with the FSC's "Directions for Use by Securities Investment Trust Enterprises of Securities Investment Trust Funds for Trading of Securities-Related Products" and other relevant regulations from the FSC. If amended by relevant laws and regulations, the revised provisions shall prevail.
 3. If any failure in subscription/redemption occurs or if a situation specified in Paragraph 3, Article 21 of the Fund's Trust Deed arises, resulting in a deviation from the investment proportion limit specified in item (1) for the benchmark index component stocks, adjustment to meet such proportion requirements must be made within five (5) business days following the end of such situation.
 4. However, based on the Management Company's professional judgment, in exceptional circumstances, for the purpose of diversifying risk and ensuring the safety of the fund, the investment proportion limits specified in item (1) above may be disregarded. Exceptional circumstances are defined as follows:
 - (1.) One month prior to the termination of the Fund's Trust Deed; or
 - (2.) Significant and unexpected political or economic events within the country (e.g. coups, wars, energy crises, terrorist attacks, or natural disasters), temporary suspension of domestic or international financial markets (stock, bond, or currency markets), changes in laws and regulations or policies (e.g., the implementation of foreign exchange controls or reduction of daily price downward fluctuation limit), or other force majeure events that could potentially affect the economic development and financial market stability of the country or region.
 5. Within thirty (30) business days after the conclusion of the exceptional circumstances described in the previous paragraph, the Management Company shall promptly adjust the investment portfolio to comply with the proportion limits specified in item (1).

- (ii.) The Management Company may maintain the Fund's assets in cash, deposited with financial institutions (including the Fund Custodian), engaging in repurchase agreement of bonds, or purchasing short-term notes, or using other methods as specified by the FSC, and instruct the Fund Custodian to handle these assets accordingly. Unless otherwise specified by laws and regulations, the credit ratings of the financial institutions where the assets are deposited, the counterparties for repurchase agreement of bonds, or the underlying assets, should meet or exceed the minimum rating levels provided by credit rating agencies approved or recognized by the FSC.
- (iii.) When the Management Company uses the Fund to invest in TWSE or Tex-listed securities, unless otherwise specified by laws and regulations, it should entrust a securities broker to conduct cash transactions for spot trading in central exchange market or OTC market, and instruct the Fund Custodian to handle the settlement.
- (iv.) When the Management Company entrusts a securities broker for trading as described in the preceding paragraph, it may appoint a broker with an interest in the Management Company or the Fund Custodian, or the brokerage department of the Fund Custodian, provided that the commission paid to such a broker does not exceed the rates charged by other general securities brokers.

x. Key information on the investment strategies and characteristics

(i.) Investment strategies

1. The Fund adopts an indexing strategy, based on full replication to track the performance of benchmark index "TIP FactSet Taiwan AI 50 Index", with the objective of achieving the performance of the benchmark index as closely as possible, while also managing tracking error as part of its investment management objectives, after deducting all necessary expenses. To achieve the aforementioned operational objectives, the Fund will start from its listing date, invest at least 90%(inclusive) of its net asset value in the component stocks of the benchmark index, and in principle, must achieve 100% coverage of the index components. To meet the Fund's need for index tracking and requirements for capital allocation, the Fund may engage in other securities-related products transactions and invest in other securities so that the overall exposure of the investment portfolio can match 100% of the Fund's net asset scale as closely as possible.

The Fund primarily uses full replication method. However, in exceptional circumstances (including but not limited to insufficient liquidity of component stocks, component companies event factors, trading suspensions, the Fund's response to subscriptions and redemptions, inability to hold due to the management of political and economic risks, other market factors, difficulty in replicating the full size of the fund or other circumstances not attributable to the Management Company, which makes it difficult for the Fund to use full replication method to track the benchmark index performance), the Management Company may, based on actual needs, use optimization methods for asset management to pursue performance closely tracking the benchmark index. Once the aforementioned factors are resolved, the fund manager will gradually adjust the component stocks according to market conditions to align with the stated standards.

2. Strategies for the Fund's overall exposure position, securities exposure position, and securities-related products exposure position are described below:

- (1.) Strategies for overall exposure position

The investment objective of the Fund is to track the return of the benchmark index, while using securities and trading in securities-related products to ensure that the Fund's overall exposure position closely matches 100% of its net asset value.

- (2.) Strategies for securities exposure position

The component stocks of the benchmark index are the primary investment objects, with the total amount invested in these component securities or new component stocks announced for inclusion in the index adjustment being no less than 90% (inclusive) of the Fund's net asset value.

- (3.) Strategies for securities-related products exposure position

In addition to investing in securities, the Fund will also engage in transactions involving securities-related products to ensure that overall total exposure position of the Fund closely matches 100% of its net asset value. The Fund's securities-related products will be selected based on a combination of index correlation and sufficient liquidity, and the Fund's investment portfolio will be adjusted according to the current status of the securities market and the liquidity of the underlying futures.

During the initial phase of the Fund, the exposure to securities-related products will primarily consist of index futures related to the benchmark index. Additionally, considering liquidity and asset management, the Fund may also use other futures contracts with high correlation as supplementary instruments.

- (ii.) Investment characteristics

1. Taiwan occupies a crucial and strategic position in the global AI ecosystem. This ETF's benchmark index focuses on the three main pillars of the AI industry: computing power, algorithms, and data. Based on the FactSet Revere Business Industry Classification System (RBICS), it identifies and consolidates AI-related sub-sectors from the 6th level (L6) industry classification. The precise industry profiling highlights the future trends and potential opportunities of Taiwan's AI industry and provides investors with a comprehensive opportunity to invest in Taiwan's AI industry.
2. The Fund announces its portfolio composition daily and releases real-time estimated net asset values during trading hours. The index provider regularly or from time to time publishes the latest component stocks of the Fund's benchmark index and relevant changes. The Management Company will also disclose the Fund's investment portfolio. Information is relatively transparent, which will facilitate investors to assess investment opportunities and risks.
3. This Fund is listed on the TWSE. Investors can trade during the TWSE's trading hours or conduct subscriptions and redemptions through participating securities firms in the primary market during the times specified by the Management Company. Trading method is easy and can be done in many convenient ways. Investing in ETFs offers diversification of individual stock risk and generally incurs lower overall transaction costs compared to traditional common mutual funds, making them suitable for long-term investors.

- xi. Profile of the typical investor for whom the Fund is suitable

The Fund is a domestic ETF with the operational objective of tracking performance of the benchmark index "TIP FactSet Taiwan AI 50 Index." The creation of the benchmark index incorporates multiple factors such as financial quality, revenues, dividends, and volatility and refers to the FactSet RBICS, to select an investment portfolio that represents the long-term trends of Taiwan's TWSE/TPEX-listed companies in the AI industry chain. The main income sources of the Fund include potential capital gains and dividend incomes. As the Fund only invests in the domestic securities market, the risk is relatively concentrated, and investment risks cannot be completely eliminated. Investors should fully understand the Fund's investment characteristics and risks. The Fund is suitable for investors who are willing to withstand greater risks of benchmark index price fluctuations, over-concentration in certain sectors, industry cyclicality, liquidity issues, risks of tracking the benchmark index, and the Fund returns not closely mirroring to the benchmark index's returns.

 1. Unless otherwise specified by the competent authority or the stock exchange, the Management Company shall, starting from one business day before the listing date, determine and announce the "Cash Subscription/Redemption List" for the following business day after the net asset value of the Fund is calculated and completed every business day. Such information shall be publicly announced on the Management Company's website.

If the Management Company decides not to accept a subscription, it must handle the matter in accordance with the relevant provisions of the Operational Guidelines.
 3. The Management Company may charge a subscription service charge for each subscription. The subscription service charge of the Fund's beneficiary certificates is not included in the Fund's assets. The Fund's subscription service charge is in accordance with the latest prospectus.

- (ii.) From the listing date of the Fund

Subscribers may, on any business day, instruct participating securities firms to submit subscription applications to the Management Company in accordance with the procedures specified in the Trust Deed and Operational Guidelines. - (iii.) From the Fund's establishment date until the day before its listing date (excluding that date), subscriptions for the Fund's beneficiary units will not be accepted.

(Note: This English translation is provided for reference only and might not exactly reflect the true meaning and full text of the original language.)

Except for the power of attorney, which must be kept in its original form, copies of the other documents should be retained for record-keeping purposes. Additionally, the subscriber must provide the following documents for verification as required:
 - (1.) If the subscriber is a natural person and a citizen of the country, they must provide their national identification card. - (i.) The incomes distributable per beneficiary unit of the Fund refer to:

(Note: This English translation is provided for reference only and might not exactly reflect the true meaning and full text of the original language.)

1. Cash dividends, interest income, distributions from the Fund's incomes, cash dividends returned by the borrower of securities lent by the Fund, lease incomes and the reserve for income equalization prior to the ex-dividend date (excluding that date), net of expenses incurred by the Fund.
 2. If the additional distribution includes realized capital gains, net of capital losses (both realized and unrealized) and expenses borne by the Fund, then the net asset value per beneficiary unit on the distribution valuation date should be higher than the issue price per beneficiary unit prior to the Fund's establishment date (excluding that date). Furthermore, the net asset value per beneficiary unit, after subtracting the distributable incomes per beneficiary unit for the current period, should not be lower than the issue price per beneficiary unit prior to the Fund's establishment date (excluding that date).
- (ii.) Starting from the 120 days (inclusive) after the Fund's establishment date, the Management Company shall value the Fund's net asset value and income situation on the distribution valuation date (i.e., the last calendar day of each month) to determine the value of the distribution of incomes. The Management Company may decide the amount to be distributed or whether to make a distribution based on the Fund's incomes situation. Therefore, the amount distributed each time is not necessarily the same.  - (iii.) The Management Company shall, in accordance with laws and regulations, announce the distribution amount per beneficiary unit, the distribution payment date, the distribution record date, the distribution method, and other relevant matters related to the income distribution. The Management Company must distribute the incomes to the beneficiaries within forty-five (45) business days after each distribution valuation date. The period during which changes to the beneficiaries' register are suspended and the distribution record date must be announced in advance by the Management Company in accordance with Article 34 of the Trust Deed.
 - (iv.) The distributable incomes of the Fund may only be distributed after the auditor approved by the FSC to audit public companies has issued a verification report. However, if the distributable incomes include capital gains, distribution can only occur after the audit by the auditor approved by the FSC to audit public companies.
 - (v.) The total amount of each distribution should be deposited by the Fund Custodian into an independent account named "KGI Taiwan Premium Selection AI 50 ETF." This amount will no longer be considered part of the Fund's assets; however, any interest earned on this amount should be included in the Fund.
 - (vi.) The distributable income should be allocated equally among the total number of beneficiary units outstanding as of the income distribution record date. The distribution payments should be made by means of registered, crossed, non-endorsable, non-transferable note or remittances payable to the beneficiaries. The Management Company must announce the calculation method, as well as the amount, location, time, and method of the payment.
 - (vii.) Distribution example:

The distributable income includes realized capital gains net of capital losses (both realized and unrealized loss) and the expenses borne by the Fund, provided that the remaining amount is positive. The decided distribution amount is TWD30,000,000. The distributable income table is as follows:

(ii.) Principle of component selection

1. Sampling universe

(Note: This English translation is provided for reference only and might not exactly reflect the true meaning and full text of the original language.)

- (1.) Index Universe: Common stocks listed on the TWSE and the TPEX, excluding managed stocks, emerging stocks, and stocks with altered trading methods or suspended from trading; however, those suspended from trading due to corporate actions, including but not limited to capital reduction, conversion to holding company, exchange of shares into the shares of newly established companies or change of par value may still be included in the Index Universe.
- (2.) Sampling Range: The stocks in the Index Universe excluding those on Taiwan Innovation Board (TIB). Also, the market capitalization of the stocks must be at least NT$ 5 billion.

2. Criteria of component selection

- (1.) Liquidity test:
Both of the following conditions must be met in order to pass the liquidity test.
 - a. Condition 1 is passed if either one of the two below is met:
 - (a) The total transaction amount over the most recent 12 calendar months is ranked in descending order within the top 20%.
 - (b) The free float turnover ratio reaches 3% for at least 8 months in the last 12 calendar months.
 - b. Condition 2: Excluding the total transaction amounts over the most recent 3 calendar months, ranked in descending order, which fall within the bottom 10%.
- (2.) Index screening:
Selecting component stocks from the sampling universe by meeting both of the following indicators.
 - a. Quality indicator: Excluding the average return on equity over the past 4 quarters, ranked in descending order, which falls within the bottom 5%.
 - b. AI industry indicator: Based on FactSet's RBICS, those fall under the name of RBICS Level 6 Sub-industry (The Index selects the name from the RBICS Level 6 Sub-industry (L6)¹) with operating revenue accounts for 30% or more %² of the subject listed company.

(3.) Downside risk indicator: Excluding the downward risk indicator³ ranked in descending order, which falls within the top 5%.

(4.) Dividend quality indicator:

(a) Cash dividends are distributed in the most recent year, and distributed cash dividend for at least 2 out of the most recent 3 years.

(b) During the regular review in May, if the board of directors decides not to distribute dividends, or has not decided to pay cash dividends before the deadline for review data, or stocks with annual dividends that have been ex-dividend before the effective date, will also be excluded.

3. Sorting Method:

Stocks that pass the liquidity test and index screening are ranked in descending order based on their "multi-factor composite score," and the top 50 stocks with the highest composite scores are selected.

³ Using the natural logarithm return sequence of the daily adjusted price of the last 252 trading days. If the price increase on that day is greater than the average return of the sequence, the fluctuation on that day is replaced by zero. At least 64 data are required. After the adjustments above, then calculate the annualized sample volatility. The formula is as follows:

$$\frac{252}{T-1} \sum_{t=1}^T (ret_t - \overline{ret})^2 * dummy, \quad dummy = \begin{cases} 1, & ret_t < \overline{ret} \\ 0, & ret_t \geq \overline{ret} \end{cases}$$

(Note: This English translation is provided for reference only and might not exactly reflect the true meaning and full text of the original language.)

The "multi-factor composite score" is calculated by weighting⁴ the dividend yield ranking score, momentum ranking score and corporate value growth indicator ranking score. Among which:

$$\text{dividend yield} = \frac{\text{sum of cash dividends in the last four quarters}}{\text{closing price on the data cut - off date}}$$

$$\text{momentum} = \frac{\text{adjusted closing price in the most recent 1 week}}{\text{the maximum adjusted highest price in the most recent 52 week}}$$

$$\text{enterprise value growth indicator} = \frac{EBEV_t - EB EV_{t-1}}{|EB EV_{t-1}|}$$

4. Weighting Method:

Modified equal weight; the constituents are ranked by free float adjusted market capitalization in descending order. The top 10 stocks are classified as Group 1, the 11th to 25th as Group 2, and the 26th to 50th as Group 3. The individual component of each Group will be weighted by 4%, 2%, and 1.2%, respectively.

5. Index calculation

a. Index calculation frequency:

(a) Starting from July 1, 2024, the real-time TIP FactSet Taiwan AI 50 Index is calculated and announced every five (5) seconds during the trading hours of the TWSE and the TPEx, based on the latest trading prices of the component stocks. The end-of-day (EOD) index is calculated once a day after the market closes.

(b) TIP also compiles the TIP FactSet Taiwan AI 50 Total Return Index, which adjusts the TIP FactSet Taiwan AI 50 Index after considering the cash dividend factor, in order to reflect cash dividend-included returns. The index is calculated and announced once every day after the market closes.

b. Calculation formula:

⁴ For the regular review in May, the dividend yield ranking scores, momentum ranking scores and corporate value growth indicator ranking scores are based on 80%, 10%, and 10% respectively; for the regular review in November, the ranking scores are 10%, 45%, and 45% are weighted.

(Note: This English translation is provided for reference only and might not exactly reflect the true meaning and full text of the original language.)

(a) TIP FactSet Taiwan AI 50 Index as a "Price Index":

$$\text{Index}_t = \frac{\sum_{i=1}^n \text{cp}_{i,t} \times s_{i,t} \times p_{i,t}}{\text{Divisor}_t} \times 5000$$

$\text{cp}_{i,t} \times s_{i,t} \times p_{i,t}$ = index market value of constituent i on day t

n = number of index constituents

$p_{i,t}$ = price of constituent i on day t

$s_{i,t}$ = number of issued shares of constituent i on day t

$\text{cp}_{i,t}$ = adjustment coefficient of constituent i on day t; the coefficient used is determined according to the Market-Value Investment Index Category under the "TIP Corporate Actions and Events Methodology".

Divisor = index divisor for the "Price Index"; after the market closes, the index divisor of the constituent is adjusted according to the Market-Value Investment Index Category under TIP's "TIP Corporate Actions and Events Methodology", to maintain the index continuity. The adjustment method is as follows:

Index divisor = index divisor on the previous day

Note 1: The base date is May 29, 2024, and the base value is set at 5000 points.

Note 2: The index divisor on the base date is the total index market values at that time.

$$\sum_{i=1}^n \text{cp}_{i,\text{launch}} \times s_{i,\text{launch}} \times p_{i,\text{launch}}, \text{ launch} = \text{base date}$$

(b) TIP Taiwan MFHD30 Total Return Index as the "Total Return Index":

$$\text{Index}_t = \frac{\sum_{i=1}^n \text{cp}_{i,t} \times s_{i,t} \times p_{i,t}}{\text{DivisorTR}_t} \times 5000$$

$$\left(\frac{\text{total index market values at the previous day's close} + \text{total index market values changes}}{\text{total index market values at the previous day's close}} \right)$$

6. Component adjustment and index maintenance

a. Periodic review and adjustment of components:

(a) The components are reviewed twice a year, with the 7th trading day of May and the 19th trading day of November as the review record dates, and the data⁵ cut-off dates are the last trading day of April and 12th

⁵ If there are other rules, they shall prevail.

(Note: This English translation is provided for reference only and might not exactly reflect the true meaning and full text of the original language.)

trading day of December. A fixed number of 50 components is selected after each periodic review.

(b) The turnover limit on the number of components: A maximum of 24 replacements is required to be met on the regular review.

(c) The results of the component regular review will become effective 5 trading days after the review date. Starting from the effective date of the index's regular review (inclusive), there will be a transition period of 5 trading days during which the adjusted weights from the regular review will be distributed and adjusted over those 5 trading days.

(d) For the index divisor maintenance, the closing data of each previous trading day during the index adjustment transition period will be adopted to calculate the difference in index market value between the new component stock portfolio and the original one, which is used as the total index market value changes.

(e) If the review data of holding companies or newly established companies is insufficient, and the representative companies of the converted stocks meet the Sampling Universe qualification, the data of the representative companies or their stocks may be used in the review.

b. TIP FactSet Taiwan AI 50 Index is a market-value investment index category. The related maintenance such as the non-periodic adjustment of components, the adjustment coefficient, the number of issued shares, and the index divisor is handled according to the "TIP Corporate Actions and Events Methodology". If a component is removed as a result of the above reasons, the vacancy created will not be filled.

c. Principles for implementation of the free float coefficient:

(a) If the free float coefficient is lower than 10%, it will not be included in the Sampling Universe.

(b) The update for the free float coefficient shall be in conjunction with the effective date of component periodic review.

(c) The free float coefficient is updated based on the latest data generated from TIP's "TIP Free Float Coefficient Calculation Guide".

(iii.) Method for replicating index performance by the Management Company

The Fund adopts an indexing strategy based on full replication to track the performance of benchmark index "TIP FactSet Taiwan AI 50 Index", with the objective of achieving the performance of the benchmark index as closely as possible, after deducting various necessary expenses from the Fund. options, or futures options derived from stock indices, stocks, depositary receipt, or ETF, and other securities-related products approved by the FSC. Such transactions must comply with the FSC's "Directions for Use by Securities Investment Trust Enterprises of Securities Investment Trust Funds for Trading of Securities-Related Products" and other relevant regulations from the FSC. This is to ensure that the overall exposure of the Fund's investments in component bonds of the benchmark index, including securities-related products, closely aligns with 100% of the Fund's net asset value.

1. Methods for adjustment of investment portfolio:

- (1.) The Management Company receives the latest index data directly from the index provider each day, including details such as component stocks, free float coefficients, shares outstanding, and ex-dividend information. When the latest index data differs from that of the previous business day, the Fund will generate a list of required adjustments to the investment portfolio based on the updated index data. This list will then serve as a reference for investment decisions.
 - (2.) In addition to the daily index data files, the Management Company collects information on corporate events such as mergers, splits, acquisitions, adjustments, and dividend distributions of component stocks from sources like the MOPS and Bloomberg. This data is used to verify the index and ensure the accuracy of the index information.
 - (3.) Monitor value at risk and make timely adjustments to the portfolio composition: Since the prices of component stocks can fluctuate daily, which may alter their weights in the benchmark index and cause deviations between the model portfolio performance and the benchmark index, the fund manager monitors the differences in returns and weights of component stocks between the model portfolio and the benchmark index on each trading day. Based on these deviations in returns and component stock weights, adjustments to the investment portfolio are made to ensure closer alignment with the performance of the benchmark index.
2. When the Fund invests in a representative sample of component stocks of the index, the following sampling and operational methods are used to ensure the sample accurately reflects the overall characteristics of the index:

The Fund's portfolio management objective is to seek the return of the benchmark index. In order to achieve the Fund's investment objective, the investability and market representativeness of securities and securities-related products within the Fund's investment universe will be taken into account. The Management Company will calculate the allocation ratio of the investment portfolio based on the correlation between individual securities and securities-related products and the underlying index.

ii. Comparison of Fund performance with the benchmark index performance:

- (i.) The investment objective of this Fund is to track the performance of the benchmark index. Therefore, to measure the difference between the Fund's performance and the investment objective, the goal of investment management will be to minimize the Tracking Difference. The definition and calculation method are explained as follows:

1. Definition:

The Fund aims to track the performance of the benchmark index. Since the

(Note: This English translation is provided for reference only and might not exactly reflect the true meaning and full text of the original language.)

Fund has a dividend distribution mechanism and the benchmark index's returns include dividend, the comparison of the Fund's performance with that of the benchmark index will be based on the Fund's dividend-inclusive returns, i.e., the Tracking Difference, which measures the fund's tracking performance.

2. Calculation Formula:

Tracking Difference = Current Period Fund Unit Net Asset Value Dividend-Inclusive Return (%) – Current Period Benchmark Index Return (%)

Among them,

Current Period Fund Unit Net Asset Value Dividend-Inclusive Return (%) is based on the dividend-inclusive return rate calculated by a fair third party (such as experts commissioned by the SITCA, Morningstar, Bloomberg, or other fund evaluation organizations). This rate serves as the standard for comparison.

Current Period Benchmark Index Return (%) = (Current Period Benchmark Index Value (TWD) / Previous Period Benchmark Index Value (TWD)) - 1

(ii.) Control Indicators are as follows, and the reasonableness of tracking difference and tracking error standards will be reviewed annually:

1. Daily Tracking Difference (TD): The daily tracking difference (TD) reaches - 1%.
2. Monthly Tracking Error (TE): The monthly tracking error (TE) reaches 4%.

(VI.) Investment Risk Disclosure

The Fund is a domestic ETF that aims to track the performance of index "TIP FactSet Taiwan AI 50 Index." The Fund invests in securities within the ROC and, at reasonable risk levels, in securities related to the benchmark index. The creation of the benchmark index incorporates multiple factors such as financial quality, revenues, dividends, and volatility and refers to the FactSet RBICS industry classification, to select an investment 50 portfolios that represents the long-term trends of Taiwan's TWSE/TPEX-listed companies in the AI industry chain. Whilst investing in ETFs has the effect of risk diversification, there are still considerable risks, and investors should be aware of all risks associated with investment in the Fund. The Fund's main income sources include potential capital gains and dividends. As the Fund only invests in the domestic securities market, the risk is relatively concentrated, and investment risks cannot be completely eliminated. Investors should fully understand the Fund's investment characteristics and risks. The Fund is suitable for investors who pursue long-term investment returns and are willing to accept greater risks of the benchmark index price fluctuations, over-concentration in certain sectors, industry cyclicality, liquidity, tracking of the benchmark index, and the Fund's returns not closely mirroring the benchmark index's returns. With reference to the "Fund Risk and Return Classification Standard issued by the Securities Investment Trust & Consulting Association of the ROC," a fund's risk and return level is classified on a scale from RR1 to RR5 (low to high) based on fund types, investment areas or main investment objects/industries. The Fund is classified as RR5 for its risk and return level. This classification is based on the calculated standard deviation of a fund's net asset value volatility over the past five (5) years and the range of standard deviations. Investors are reminded that this classification reflects market price volatility risk under general market conditions and cannot cover all risks (such as a fund's currency exchange risk, invested industry risk, credit risk, interest rate risk, liquidity risk, etc.). It should not be referred to as the sole basis for investment. Before investing, investors should still pay attention to the specific risks of the funds they invest in and consider their own risk tolerance and the length of time their capital can be utilized. Please peruse the Fund's prospectus for the relevant risks of investing in the Fund. Relevant data such as annualized standard deviation, Alpha, Beta, and Sharpe ratio can be found on the website of the Securities Investment Trust & Consulting Association of the ROC in the Fund Performance and Evaluation Indicators Inquiry section (https://www.sitca.org.tw/index_pc.aspx). The risk and return level for different types of funds are based on the following principles:

The Management Company employs an indexing strategy with the goal of closely tracking the performance of the benchmark index (TIP FactSet Taiwan AI 50 Index) after deducting all necessary expenses. However, investment risks cannot be completely eliminated. In addition to the risks associated with investing in domestic securities and securities-related products, the volatility of the benchmark index's price will impact the Fund's net asset value. The following are potential investment risks that may affect the Fund (including but not limited to):

i. Risk of over-concentration in same-sector stocks

The Fund is an ETF. The fund manager will conduct optimal asset allocation based on the benchmark index. However, due to potential price fluctuations caused by industrial cycles or non-economic factors, the Fund's net asset value may experience significant short-term volatility. This may lead to a risk of over-concentration in same-sector stocks. The Management Company will exercise due diligence as a prudent manager to reduce the risk of sector over-concentration, but this does not imply that the risk can be fully eliminated.

ii. Business cycle risk

The benchmark index tracked by the Fund covers technology-related industries which may be affected by the cyclical fluctuations of the industry. When the overall industry outlook becomes conservative, the incomes and growth potential of companies may be constrained, and the performance of the stock market may adjust downward due to the contraction of the industry cycle. This could potentially have a direct impact on the benchmark index, which may further affect the net asset value of the Fund.

iii. Liquidity risk

The Fund adopts an indexing strategy based on full replication, investing its assets in securities and securities-related products that are associated with the tracked benchmark index. To achieve the performance of the benchmark index, the fund will maintain a certain level of exposure. However, in the event of special political or economic conditions, trading target price limit or suspensions of trading in specific securities, there could be situations where investment objects become untradeable, margin calls for futures occur or insufficient trading volume, and therefore liquidity risks may arise. The Management Company will diligently fulfill their management duties, but this does not mean that such risks can be entirely avoided.

iv. Risk associated with foreign exchange controls and exchange rate fluctuations

Nil. (The Fund only invests in securities within the ROC.)

v. Risk associated with changes in the political or economic conditions of the geographic regions in which the fund invests

The securities market in our country is significantly affected by political factors. Thus, domestic and international political and economic situations, cross-strait relations, and future developments can impact the price fluctuations of the securities in which the Fund invests. Additionally, factors such as interest rate adjustments and industry structure changes can influence the prices of listed and over-the-counter listed stocks, leading to fluctuations in the net asset value of the Fund. While the Management Company will strive to diversify investment risks, these risks cannot be completely eliminated.

vi. Credit risk of the financial instrument counterparty and guarantor institution

- (i.) Counterparty Credit Risk: This refers to the risk that a counterparty may fail to fulfill its settlement obligations for current or future cash flows. The extent of this risk depends on the counterparty's ability to perform. Before engaging in transactions, the Fund carefully selects its counterparties, evaluates and manages the credit risk of both counterparties and clients, and implements corresponding risk control measures. However, this does not guarantee that the risk can be completely eliminated.

- (ii.) Credit Risk of Guarantor Institutions: Nil. (The Fund does not involve guarantee institutions, and thus there is no such risk.)

vii. Risk associated with investment in structured products

Nil. (The Fund does not invest in structured products, and thus there is no such

(Note: This English translation is provided for reference only and might not exactly reflect the true meaning and full text of the original language.)

risk.)

viii. Risk associated with other underlying investments or specific investment strategies

(i.) Risk associated with investment objects:

1. Risk of investing in call or put warrants or stock warrants.

This refers to financial investment tools derived from the underlying stock, but they do not confer shareholder rights. Their prices are closely related to the underlying stock's price and may be influenced by factors such as market interest rates, time to expiration, and exercise price. These instruments use high financial leverage to pursue significant returns, and therefore possess high risk and high reward characteristics.

2. Risk of investing in ETFs

An ETF is a type of security traded on a stock exchange. It holds a portfolio of stocks and divides it into numerous lower-priced investment units to reflect the beneficial rights of the holders. A potential risk is that, at the initial issuance stage, low investor awareness of the product may lead to poor liquidity, causing a discrepancy between the ETF's market price and its intrinsic value, resulting in an ETF discount or premium. However, this risk can be mitigated through market makers who act as intermediaries to improve liquidity.

3. Investment in inverse ETFs and leveraged ETFs

In addition to market risk, inverse ETFs may face risks related to insufficient short-sale targets, regulatory changes that may prohibit short selling, tracking error risks due to divergence between the short-sale targets and the index movements, and liquidity risks when there are fewer market makers for the ETF. Leveraged ETFs aim to achieve returns that are higher than the index movements with a smaller amount of investment. If the manager believes that the market is likely to rise, they can use leveraged ETFs to accelerate gains. However, if the index falls, they may incur greater losses.

4. Risks associated with investing in futures trust funds that are raised from unspecified investors:

Futures trust funds engage in futures or options trading, which has low margin financial leverage characteristics. This can result in substantial profits or losses within a short period, causing significant volatility in the Fund's net asset value.

(ii.) Risks associated with specific investment strategies:

1. Risk of tracking the benchmark index: The investment performance of the Fund will be influenced by the movements of the benchmark index it tracks. When the benchmark index experiences significant fluctuations or declines, the Fund's net asset value will also fluctuate accordingly.

2. Risk of the fund not fully tracking the performance of the benchmark index: The Fund may not fully track the performance of the benchmark index due to the following factors:

(1.) The Fund may need to adjust its exposure due to factors such as redemptions or maintaining required exposure levels. As a result, the fund's net asset value will be influenced by factors such as the trading prices of securities or futures, transaction fees, other necessary expenses of the Fund (e.g., management fees, custodian fees, listing fees, or index licensing fees), price fluctuations of portfolio components, or the overall exposure ratio of the fund. These factors may cause deviations between the fund's returns and its investment objectives.

- (2.) To achieve the performance effect of the tracked benchmark index, the Fund needs to construct its overall exposure using the components of the benchmark index and related securities products. Therefore, factors such as the overall exposure ratio of the fund, the daily bid-ask spread of securities-related products (e.g., futures) relative to the benchmark index or its components, the correlation between the held securities-related products and the underlying assets, and the price fluctuations of portfolio components will affect the degree to which the fund's overall portfolio deviates from the multiple returns of the benchmark index.
3. Risk of changes in the benchmark index's construction method or calculation accuracy: The index provider may alter the method of index construction or make errors in index value calculations, leading to distortions in the index. Even if the Fund's investment operations are strictly controlled, there remains a risk of deviation due to these factors.
4. Risk of changes in the fund's investment portfolio: The components of the benchmark index tracked by the Fund may change due to the inclusion or exclusion of index components. When there are changes in index components or their weights, the Fund will adjust its investment portfolio to align with the index changes to meet its investment objectives. Consequently, the Fund's most recent portfolio may not be identical to the benchmark index components at the time of the investor's initial investment.
5. Risk of termination of the benchmark index authorization: The benchmark index of the Fund is governed by an index licensing agreement between the Management Company and the index provider, which includes terms for the termination of index authorization. If the Management Company and the index provider decide to terminate the index authorization, there is a risk that the benchmark index tracked by the Fund may face termination. This could result in the Fund being forced to terminate earlier than anticipated.
6. Risk due to differences between the benchmark index and its traditional index and related discrepancies: The Fund's customized index is based on FactSet's RBICS industry classification, which is used to select stocks from the AI-related industry chain that meet the liquidity criteria and market capitalization size, and excludes those whose financial quality, downside risk, and dividend quality are not up to standard, and then selects 50 high-quality AI-related components in Taiwan; the composite score is calculated based on the three main indicators of dividend yield, momentum factor, and enterprise value growth, and weighting methods such as free float market capitalization subgroups are used to allocate weightings, so as to recognize the performance of the portfolio with future trends and potential opportunities in Taiwan's AI industry chain.
 - (1.) The benchmark index tracked by the Fund is a customized and Smart Beta index. The index focuses on companies in the Taiwan AI-related industry chain, which carries a risk of over-concentration compared to traditional indices. This may result in the Fund's performance not necessarily being suitable for comparison with traditional index performance. There is no guarantee that the customized index's performance will always outperform market conditions. The index performance may lag behind market-cap-weighted indices or other performance benchmarks, with the duration of such underperformance being uncertain.

- (2.) The benchmark index of the Fund is a Smart Beta (single-factor/multi-factor) index. Compared to ETFs that track market-cap-weighted indices, it may allocate a significant portion of its holdings to companies with smaller market capitalizations.

The benchmark index of the Fund is the TIP FactSet Taiwan AI 50 Index. The differences and risks compared to the representative index, the Taiwan Weighted Index (TAIEX), are as follows:

Key Differences from the Representative Index	Explanation of Differences	Potential Risks
Sampling Range Differences	The sampling range of the index includes common stocks listed and traded over the counter in Taiwan, with market capitalization no less than TWD 5 billion.	When there are differences between over-the-counter companies and listed companies, the performance of the index and the representative index will also show differences.
Difference in screening methods	The index's screening criteria require eligible companies to pass quality indicators, AI industry indicators, downside risk indicators, and dividend quality indicators, which is different from the representative index.	When the returns of companies meeting the screening criteria differ from the returns of companies within the representative index, the performance of this index compared to the representative index will also differ.
Difference in Sorting Method	The index is sorted from highest to lowest based on the "multi-factor composite score," which is calculated using weighted scores from dividend yield ranking,	When the returns of companies that meet the sorting criteria differ from those in the representative index, the performance of the index

	momentum ranking, and enterprise value growth indicators. Ultimately, the top 50 stocks based on the composite score are selected, which is different from the representative index.	and the representative index will also differ.
Differences in Weighting	The index uses modified equal weight, ranked by free float market capitalization from highest to lowest. The top 10 are designated as Group 1, ranks 11 to 25 as Group 2, and ranks 26 onward as Group 3. The individual component stock weights are allocated at 4%, 2%, and 1.2% for each group, which is different from the representative index.	When the weight of individual stocks differs from that in the representative index, the performance of the index may also differ from the representative index.

7. Risk of high dividend frequency: The Fund distributes income monthly. The Management Company may determine the distribution amount each month based on the Fund's income and in accordance with internal controls and laws and regulations. As a result, the distribution amount may vary, leading to potential fluctuations in dividend income for investors. Additionally, investors may face higher remittance costs associated with the frequent distributions.

ix. Risk of trading in securities-related products

To manage the risk of price fluctuations in securities, the Fund may use transactions in securities-related products approved by the FSC for hedging or increasing investment efficiency. However, if the Management Company makes incorrect market judgments or if the securities-related products are not highly correlated with the Fund's underlying positions, this could lead to potential losses for the Fund. Additionally, if it becomes necessary to liquidate securities-related products before their expiration, there may be a risk of inability to execute trades due to insufficient market liquidity.

x. Risk associated with the lending of held securities or the borrowing of securities

The Fund may participate in the securities lending market to enhance its returns. However, there is a risk that the borrower may fail to return the securities on time, potentially causing losses to the fund. Additionally, there is a risk that the securities lending ratio may exceed the regulatory limits if the fund repurchases the securities. To effectively manage these risks, the Management Company has established specific securities lending methods and limits, conducts rigorous reviews to ensure that the securities lending ratio does not exceed regulatory limits, and adheres strictly to securities lending management guidelines and procedures.

(i.) Severe price fluctuations before the return of borrowed securities

If the fund managed by the Management Company encounters an unexpected event and needs to dispose of the borrowed securities, it can request the borrower to return the securities early. However, due to the time lag in the return of the securities, there is a risk that severe price fluctuations may occur, potentially leading to difficulties in disposing of the securities in a timely manner.

(ii.) Liquidity issues

If the borrower defaults on their obligation to return the borrowed securities, the stock exchange, the OTC trading center, or the lender will liquidate the collateral and purchase the securities from the market to return to the lender. However, if insufficient liquidity prevents the securities from being repurchased at a fair price and in sufficient quantity, the lender may be compensated in cash. This poses a risk that the cash value may be less than the original value of the borrowed securities.

xi. Risk of borrowing

The Fund may borrow from financial institutions in the fund's name for temporary purposes, including to cover repurchase amount or to handle securities settlements, but only up to a certain value relative to the fund's net assets. The purpose of borrowing is to create short-term financing opportunities for the fund to meet these limited needs, thereby avoiding the need to sell securities under unfavorable conditions. However, borrowing involves higher financial risks and may expose the Fund to factors such as rising interest rates, economic downturns, and others. If the income or returns from retained securities (if any) do not cover the interest or other costs of the borrowing, the net asset value per beneficiary unit may be lower compared to when no borrowing occurs. The Management Company will make careful decisions to mitigate this risk, but this does not guarantee that the risk can be completely avoided.

xii. Other investment risks

(i.) Investment risks associated with investors subscribing to or trading the Fund

1. Risks of subscribing to the Fund before the listing date (excluding that date)

From the Fund's establishment date, the Fund will arrange its initial investment portfolio based on the benchmark index components and the fund's investment objectives. The price fluctuations of the portfolio components will affect the fund's net asset value. The net asset value per unit for investors subscribing to the Fund before its listing may differ from the price after the fund is officially listed. Investors who subscribe before the listing must bear the risk of potential discounts or premiums due to price fluctuations from the subscription date until the listing date.

2. Risks of investing in the Fund through the primary market

(1.) Minimum base risk: From the listing date onward, investors must submit subscription or redemption applications through participating securities firms to the Management Company. Each subscription or redemption must be in whole numbers of a base or its multiples. If an investor holds fewer units than the minimum base, they can only trade through the secondary market.

- (2.) Risk of needing to go through participating securities firms: Investors must use participating securities firms to submit subscription and redemption requests, rather than all securities brokers. If there are special circumstances where subscriptions or redemptions are temporarily suspended, participating securities firms may be unable to provide these services to investors.
 - (3.) Risk of the Management Company refusing or suspending subscription and redemption requests: The Management Company has the right to refuse or suspend acceptance of subscription or redemption requests under orders from the FSC or in special circumstances as outlined in the Trust Deed. However, investors/beneficiaries can still trade the Fund's beneficiary certificates through the secondary market by instructing securities brokers to buy or sell on the securities exchange.
 - (4.) Risk of administrative processing fees for failed transactions:
 - a. Failed Subscription: Subscriptions to the Fund require the subscriber to prepay the total subscription amount based on the "Cash Subscription/Redemption List" announced on the subscription application date. If the prepaid amount is insufficient to cover the actual total subscription amount, and the Management Company has accepted the subscription but the subscriber fails to pay the remaining subscription amount as required by the Fund's Trust Deed, the subscription will be considered a failure.
 - b. Failed Redemption: If the Management Company has accepted a redemption request and the beneficiary fails to deliver the beneficiary certificates being redeemed as required by the Fund's Trust Deed, the redemption will be considered a failure. To protect the interests of existing beneficiaries, in the event of such a failed transaction, the applicant must pay an administrative processing fee to the Fund to cover transaction costs and losses incurred by the Fund due to the failed transaction.
 - c. For failed subscriptions: The administrative processing fee will be deducted from the advance total subscription amount paid by the subscriber on the subscription application date. For failed redemptions: The administrative processing fee must be paid to the fund by the participating securities firm on behalf of the beneficiary, according to the Fund's regulations. The participating securities firm should also make arrangements with the beneficiary regarding compensation for the administrative processing fee.
3. Risks of investing in the Fund through the secondary market:
- (1.) Risk of the fund's trading price differing from its net asset value: The trading price of the Fund on the TWSE may not match its net asset value, potentially resulting in discounts or premiums. Additionally, secondary market prices are influenced by various market factors such as the political and economic situation in the investment region, investor confidence, and liquidity constraints. This means that the trading price on the TWSE may be higher or lower than the net asset value.

(Note: This English translation is provided for reference only and might not exactly reflect the true meaning and full text of the original language.)

However, through primary market subscriptions and redemptions, as well as market-making and arbitrage activities conducted by participating securities firms, any deviations between the discount/premium and the net asset value can be further narrowed.

(2.) Risk of suspension of trading on the securities exchange: The Fund is listed and traded on the TWSE. There is a risk that trading may be halted if the TWSE announces a suspension of trading in the Taiwanese securities market.

(ii.) Risk of liquidation after termination of the Fund's listing: If the Fund encounters a termination event as specified in the Trust Deed, it will terminate its Trust Deed and proceed with liquidation following approval from the FSC and the TWSE, and after completing the process for terminating the Fund's listing.

(iii.) Risks related to FATCA compliance:

The U.S. government began implementing the Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act (FATCA) in phases starting July 1, 2014. FATCA requires foreign financial institutions (referred to as "FFIs") to identify account holders, report U.S. account information, and withhold U.S. source income for FFIs and non-compliant account holders. To prevent FFIs from avoiding agreements or non-compliance, FATCA mandates a 30% withholding tax on U.S. source income for FFIs that do not sign a Foreign Financial Institution Agreement (FFIA) or comply with FATCA regulations. The Fund managed by the Management Company is an FFI as defined by FATCA. To avoid the 30% withholding tax by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service, the Fund has completed the FFIA signing and is in compliance with FATCA.

To comply with FATCA, the Management Company will require investors or beneficiaries to provide relevant identification documents to confirm their U.S. tax status. Investors or beneficiaries should understand that, within the scope permitted by domestic laws and FATCA regulations, the Management Company may need to report beneficiary information to relevant domestic and foreign government agencies or tax authorities. This includes, but is not limited to, information obtained through business dealings (e.g., for corporate clients, including their substantial U.S. owners), information on accounts held by the investor (or corporate clients, including their substantial U.S. owners) and interacted with the Management Company (e.g., client names, addresses, U.S. taxpayer identification numbers, account numbers, account balances or values, etc.). Investors or beneficiaries should be aware and agree that providing false or misleading tax status information may result in penalties under U.S. law. If there is any change in the investor's or beneficiary's tax status, they must notify the Management Company within thirty (30) days. While the Fund strives to comply with FATCA requirements, the complexity of FATCA, or failure by investors or beneficiaries to provide required identification documents or accurate and complete information, or non-compliance by business partners or counterparties, may expose the fund to the risk of a 30% withholding tax. This could negatively impact the fund and lead to a decrease in the net asset value per unit, resulting in significant losses for investors. Withheld taxes may not be refundable by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service. To adhere to FATCA requirements, the fund may, to the extent permissible under FATCA regulations and domestic laws, impose the following requirements on transactions by investors or beneficiaries:

- 1. Rejection of subscription
- 2. Compulsory redemption or refusal of redemption
- 3. Relevant taxes will be withheld from the funds held by the beneficiary. Investors or beneficiaries should understand that the Fund may withhold relevant taxes from the amounts held by the beneficiary in accordance with FATCA compliance requirements. Investors should be aware of the tax withholding risks associated with complying or failing to comply with U.S. FATCA regulations. Given that tax withholding rules and disclosure requirements may change, investors agree that the Fund may take the aforementioned measures within the scope of applicable laws. Investors should consult their tax advisors regarding the impact of FATCA on their investments in the Fund and any potential requirements to provide and disclose information to the Management Company, the Fund, the sales agents, and possibly to the U.S. Internal Revenue Service.

(VII.) Distribution of Incomes

For details, please refer to [I. Fund Overview] (I). xxv

(VIII.) Subscription of beneficiary certificates

- i. Subscription prior to the Fund's establishment date (excluding that date)
 - (i.) Subscription procedure, location, and deadline.
 1. The Management Company shall handle the subscription process for beneficiary certificates in accordance with the "Regulations Governing the Offering, Issuance, Sale, and Subscription or Redemption Procedures of Securities Investment Trust Funds."
 2. To subscribe to the Fund's beneficiary units, the subscriber must submit the fund subscription documents on the day of application, including the subscription form, the seal card, and a copy of their national identification card (if the subscriber is a legal entity, a copy of the company registration certificate should be provided) to the Management Company or the fund sales agent. If investors subscribe to the fund through a non-discretionary trust fund, they must submit the application documents and subscription payment to the bank or securities firm on the day of application. Except that the Management Company and banks or securities firms handling subscriptions through non-discretionary trust fund may accept subscription amount, other fund sales agents can only receive the application documents. Applicants should follow the instructions of the sales institution and transfer the subscription payment directly to the fund's dedicated account set up by the Fund Custodian.
 3. The Management Company, fund sales agent, or participating securities firm shall provide a simplified prospectus to the subscriber before the subscriber submits the subscription application and completes the payment of the subscription amount or payment of the advance subscription amount. Upon request by the subscriber, the full prospectus must also be provided. If the subscription method is electronic or the subscriber agrees in writing, the prospectus may be sent via email or downloaded by the subscriber. The sales documents and advertisements for the Fund must indicate that both the prospectus and the simplified prospectus are available and specify where they can be obtained.

4. Subscription time: For direct submissions to the Management Company or by fax, the deadline is 4:30 PM on each business day. For other sales agencies, the time of receipt is subject to the regulations of each respective institution. Unless the subscriber can provide proof that the application was submitted before the deadline, any applications submitted after the deadline will be considered as transactions for the next business day. In the event of force majeure such as natural disasters or significant events that prevent normal business operations, the Management Company may adjust the deadline. However, transactions for which the subscription procedures were completed before the original deadline remain valid.
5. The subscriber should submit the fund subscription documents to the Management Company on the subscription date and transfer the subscription amount directly to the fund's dedicated account. If the subscriber applies for subscription through the fund sales agents in the name of the fund sales agents, the application form and the subscription amount should be delivered to the sales agents on the day of subscription. Except for the case in (6), the Management Company shall calculate the number of subscribed units based on the net value of the subscription amount of the subscriber on the day it is credited to the fund account.
6. If the subscriber applies for subscription through the fund sales agent in the name of the fund sales agents, or if the subscription amount is deducted from a financial institution account on the subscription date, and if the financial institution has issued instructions to transfer the subscription amount before 10:00 a.m. on the next business day after processing the subscription or deduction, and if the Management Company confirms that the subscription amount has been credited to the fund's dedicated account or receives proof of the transfer instruction before 10:00 a.m. on the next business day after processing, or if the financial institution's cross-bank network system, established under Article 47-3 of the Banking Law, experiences force majeure resulting in the subscription amount not being credited to the fund's dedicated account by 10:00 a.m. on the next business day after processing, the date on which the financial institution accepts the subscription or the deduction of payment shall be the subscription date, and the number of units received shall be calculated.
7. If the fund sales agent processes fund payments through a securities depository enterprise, and if the enterprise has issued instructions to transfer the subscription amount before the next business day following the receipt of the subscription or deduction, and if the Management Company confirms that the subscription amount has been credited to the fund's dedicated account on the next business day after processing, or if the enterprise provides proof of the transfer instructions issued before the next business day after processing, and if the subscription day is within the subscription period, the subscription units will be calculated based on the fund's offering price.
8. When a beneficiary applies for a transfer subscription between different funds managed by the same management company, the Management Company shall treat the actual date on which the redemption proceeds are transferred into the subscribed fund's account as the subscription date. However, this applies only if the funds have been transferred into the fund's dedicated account before the Fund's establishment date (excluding that date).

9. The subscription of beneficiary units should be made to the Management Company or its appointed fund sales agents.
10. For subscribers who make their purchase through the Management Company or fund sales agents, the minimum subscription amount for each transaction should be calculated as the issue price multiplied by 1,000 beneficiary units or its multiples (i.e., TWD10,000 or its integral multiple).
11. The Management Company shall exercise appropriate control over the sale of beneficiary units. In cases where the subscription amount exceeds the maximum allowable total face value, the Management Company and each fund sales agent shall handle the subscriptions fairly according to the order of the subscription times of the subscribers.
12. From the date of the Fund's establishment until the day before the listing date (excluding that date), the Management Company will not accept subscriptions or redemptions of the Fund's beneficiary units.

(ii.) Calculation and payment of subscription amount

1. Calculation of subscription amount

For details, please refer to [I. Fund Overview] (I). xiv and xv.

2. Payment of subscription amount

The subscription amount for the beneficiary units must be paid on the day of subscription through cash, remittance, bank transfer, postal money order, or by means of demand drafts such as checks, promissory notes, bank drafts, or postal drafts accepted by the fund sales agency's local clearinghouse. The date of the draft or check's clearing is considered as the subscription date. If the drafts or checks are not honored, the subscription will be deemed invalid (checks and promissory notes must be issued by the subscriber or financial institution). Once the subscription amount is fully paid, no additional payment is required from the subscriber.

(iii.) Delivery of beneficiary certificates

1. The beneficiary certificates for the Fund are registered and issued electronically. No physical certificates are printed. Instead, the Taiwan Depository & Clearing Corporation (TDCC) will handle the delivery using book-entry methods, in accordance with the regulations governing book-entry securities and the relevant rules set by the securities central depository. Beneficiaries are not allowed to request retrieval of these certificates.
2. The date on which the Management Company first registers the Fund's beneficiary certificates and units with the TDCC will be the issuance date of the beneficiary certificates. The issuance date of the beneficiary certificates must occur within thirty (30) days from the Fund's establishment date and one day prior to the commencement of trading of the Fund.

(iv.) Handling of subscription unaccepted by the Management Company or fund not-established

1. The Management Company has the discretion to decide whether to accept subscriptions for beneficiary units. However, if the Management Company decides not to accept subscriptions, it must instruct the fund custodian to refund the subscription amounts, without interest, within three(3) business days after the Fund Custodian has received and redeemed the cash or negotiable instruments from the subscriber. The subscriber must simultaneously return the receipt of the subscription application. If the receipt is not returned, it will become invalid from the date of refund of the subscription amount.

2. If the Fund is not established, the Management Company shall immediately instruct the Fund Custodian to refund the subscription amount and interest to the subscribers within ten (10) business days from the date the Fund fails to establish. The refund shall be made through a registered, crossed, non-endorsable, non-negotiable note or remittance in favor of the subscribers. The interest shall be calculated from the day after the Fund Custodian receives the subscription amount until the day before the refund is made, based on the Fund Custodian's savings deposit interest rate. The interest shall be rounded to the nearest New Taiwan Dollar (TWD), with amounts less than one TWD rounded up.
3. If the Fund is not established, the Management Company, fund sales agents, and Fund Custodian shall not be entitled to any compensation. All expenses paid for the Fund shall be borne severally by the Management Company, fund sales agents, and Fund Custodian. However, the registered mail post fees or remittance fees for refunding the subscription amount and its interest shall be borne by the Management Company.

ii. Subscription from the listing date of the Fund (inclusive)

- (i.) Procedure, location, and deadline of the subscription from the listing date of the Fund
 1. The subscriber may, on any business day, authorize a participating securities firm to submit a subscription application to the Management Company according to the procedures specified in the Trust Deed and Operational Guidelines, based on the advance total subscription amount. The participating securities firm may also submit the subscription application on its own behalf. The Management Company has the discretion to decide whether to accept the subscription application; however, if the Management Company chooses not to accept the subscription, it must handle the matter in accordance with the fund's "Operational Guidelines."
 2. The subscriber, either personally (if the subscriber is also the participating securities firm) or by authorizing a participating securities firm, should submit the subscription application to the management company via the ETF trading operation transmission platform. The subscriber must complete the "Cash Subscription Application Form," which allows the participating securities firm to handle the subscription process. The subscriber should also transmit the data from the "Cash Subscription Application Form" to the Management Company according to the procedures specified in the "Operational Guidelines."
 3. Subscription base
 - (1.) The Fund's base unit for subscription/redemption is 500,000 beneficiary units. Each subscription must be the subscription base or a multiple thereof.
 - (2.) The net asset value of each subscription base, representing a certain number of beneficiary units, on any business day should be equal to the total net asset value of the fund divided by the total number of issued beneficiary units, multiplied by the number of beneficiary units represented by each subscription base.

- (3.) If the Management Company deems it necessary, it may, after reporting to the industry association, adjust the number of beneficiary units represented by the Fund's base unit for subscription

4. Submission deadline for applications

- (1.) The subscription application for the Fund must be submitted from 9:00 AM to 12:00 PM on each business day. Any applications received after this deadline, unless the subscriber can prove they submitted before the cutoff time, will be considered as transactions for the next business day.
- (2.) In the event of force majeure, such as natural disasters or significant events that prevent normal operations, the Management Company may adjust the deadline. However, transactions completed before the adjusted deadline will still be considered valid.

(ii.) Calculation of the advance total subscription amount

1. The Management Company should, on each business day, refer to the index data provided by the index provider to establish and announce the "Cash Subscription/Redemption List" for the beneficiary certificates for the following business day.
2. For subscriptions made by a participating securities firm on its own or by consigned trading, the advance total subscription amount payable is the "equivalent net value of each cash subscription/redemption base" disclosed in the "Cash Subscription/Redemption List" on each business day, multiplied by a certain ratio, plus the subscription service charge and the pre-collected subscription transaction fee. The subscriber must pay the advance total subscription amount to the Fund's dedicated account on the subscription application date to process the subscription.

The aforementioned calculation formula for the advance total subscription amount for each subscription base is as follows:

Advance total subscription amount = Advance subscription amount + Subscription service charge

- (1.) Advance subscription amount = the "equivalent net value of each cash subscription/redemption base" disclosed in the "Cash Subscription/Redemption List" on each business day, multiplied by a certain ratio. The aforementioned "certain ratio" is currently 110%, with a maximum of 120%, and will be adjusted according to the latest prospectus.
- (2.) Subscription service charge= the Management Company may charge a subscription fee for each subscription application. Subscription service charge is not included in the Fund's assets. The applicable fee rate may be adjusted by the Management Company based on the Fund's sales strategy, while the subscription service charge per beneficiary unit must not exceed 2% of the net asset value per beneficiary unit.
- (3.) The "advance total subscription amount" listed in the "Cash Subscription/Redemption List" announced on each business day will be calculated using the above formula and rounded unconditionally to the nearest thousand TWD.

(iii.) Calculation of the actual total subscription amount for subscriptions

(Note: This English translation is provided for reference only and might not exactly reflect the true meaning and full text of the original language.)

After the Fund's net asset value has been settled, the Management Company shall calculate the actual total subscription amount payable by the subscriber by subtracting the advance total subscription amount from the actual advance total subscription amount (i.e., the total subscription amount difference). If the difference is a positive amount, the subscriber must pay the difference to complete the subscription process. If the difference is a negative amount, the Management Company shall return the difference, net of any remittance fees, without interest. The Management Company must notify the participating securities firm of the difference in the total subscription amount that needs to be paid or refunded. If the participating securities firm subscribes by consigned trading, it must inform the subscriber of the amount to be paid or refunded.

The formula for calculating the actual total subscription amount per subscription base is as follows:

Actual total subscription amount = Actual subscription amount + Subscription service charge + Actual subscription transaction fee

1. Actual total subscription amount = Number of beneficiary units represented per subscription base x (Net asset value of the fund/ Number of beneficiary certificates of the Fund for outstanding beneficiary units)
2. Subscription service charge= the Management Company may charge a subscription fee for each subscription application. This subscription fee is not included in the Fund's assets. The applicable fee rate may be adjusted by the Management Company based on the Fund's sales strategy, while the subscription service charge per beneficiary unit must not exceed 2% of the net asset value per beneficiary unit of the Fund. Currently, the subscription service charge is TWD5,000 per subscription base (including the processing fee charged by the TDCC but excluding the service charge charged by participating securities firms).
3. Actual subscription transaction fee = Actual subscription amount x Subscription transaction fee rate

Currently, the Fund's subscription transaction fee rate is 0.1% (Note). The abovementioned subscription transaction fee rate may be adjusted according to the condition of the securities market and the holdings of the investment portfolio. The rate is capped at 2%. The rules specified in the latest prospectus shall apply subsequently.

(Note) The Fund's subscription transaction fee rates are calculated based on the rates and taxes announced by Taiwan's securities and futures markets, which include but are not limited to the brokerage fee of Taiwan securities dealers ranging from 0.1% to 0.1425% (based on market rates), brokerage fee of Taiwan futures dealers ranging from 0.005% to 0.015% (based on market rates), futures transaction tax of 0.002% and securities transaction tax of 0.1% to 0.3%. The subscription fee rate of the Fund will be adjusted according to the stock or futures positions held or traded in the Fund's investment portfolio.

(iv.) Subscription failure

1. When a participating securities firm subscribes by consigned trading or directly processes a subscription application, it must ensure that the subscriber pays the advance total subscription amount, the subscription amount difference, and any other amounts due under the Trust Deed within the specified time frame, and deposits them into the relevant account. If the subscriber fails to pay the required subscription amount and deposit it into the Fund's dedicated account within the specified deadline, the subscription application will be deemed failed, and the Management Company will not issue or deliver the beneficiary certificates. The subscriber will also be responsible for paying an administrative processing fee for each failed payment.

2. Base on the professional judgment of the Management Company, if the subscriber's advance total subscription amount is insufficient to cover the actual subscription amount required for the subscription base or its multiples on the subscription date, the Management Company will not proceed with the transaction, and it will be deemed a failed subscription.
3. The subscriber must pay an administrative processing fee for each failed subscription record, except where the Management Company agrees to waive it. According to the Operational Guidelines, the Management Company shall deduct the administrative processing fee from the advance total subscription amount paid by the failed subscriber on the subscription date, and return the remaining amount to the subscriber's designated remittance account within three (3) business days after the failed subscription, starting from the next business day following the failure. The administrative processing fee is included in the assets of the Fund. The standards for the payment of the administrative processing fee shall be calculated according to the Operational Guidelines."
4. The Management Company should instruct the Fund Custodian to return the advance total subscription amount paid by the subscriber, less the administrative processing fee and any other amounts the subscriber is responsible for under the Trust Deed, in accordance with the Fund's "Operational Guidelines." The returned amount will be without interest. Any costs related to the return of the failed subscription payment, such as remittance fees, will be borne by the subscriber.
5. The calculation standards for the aforementioned administrative processing fee are as follows:
 - (1.) If the net asset value per unit of the beneficiary certificate on the business day following the subscription date is greater than the net asset value per unit on the subscription date, the calculation formula for the administrative processing fee is as follows:

T : subscription date

$$T+1 \text{ net asset value per unit} > T \text{ net asset value per unit}$$

$$\text{Administrative processing fee} = \text{Actual subscription amount} \times 2\%$$
 - (2.) If the net asset value per unit of the beneficiary certificate on the business day following the subscription date is less than (or equal to) the net asset value per unit on the subscription date, the calculation formula for the administrative processing fee is as follows

T : subscription date

$$T+1 \text{ net asset value per unit} \leq T \text{ net asset value per unit}$$

$$\text{Administrative processing fee} = \text{Actual subscription amount} \times [2\% + (T \text{ net asset value per unit} - T+1 \text{ net asset value per unit} / T \text{ net asset value per unit})]$$

(v.) Payment timing and methods for subscription amount

1. The subscriber must instruct a participating securities firm to submit the application to the Management Company by 12:00 PM on the subscription date and pay the advance total subscription amount to the fund's dedicated account to process the subscription.

2. After the fund's net asset value has been settled, the Fund Management shall calculate the difference between the actual total subscription amount and the advance total subscription amount (i.e., the total subscription amount difference). If the difference is a positive amount, the subscriber must pay the difference by 12:00 PM on the next business day following the subscription date to complete the subscription process. If the difference is a negative amount, the Management Company shall refund the total subscription amount difference, net of any remittance fees, to the subscriber within three (3) business days starting from the next business day after the subscription date, without interest. If the participating securities firm subscribes by consigned trading, it must inform the subscriber of the amount to be paid or refunded.

(vi.) Delivery of non-physical beneficiary certificates

After the issuance date of the Fund's beneficiary certificates, the Management Company must deliver the beneficiary certificates to the subscriber within seven (7) business days from the date the Fund Custodian has received the total subscription amount and any other payments due under the Trust Deed. This delivery should be done through book entry. The issuance (or delivery) of the Fund's beneficiary certificates must comply with the regulations set by the centralized securities depository enterprise in the fund's registration location. However, if there is any discrepancy or shortfall in the total subscription amount or other payments required by the Trust Deed, resulting in the failure to deliver or make up for the amount within the timeframe specified in the Operational Guidelines, the subscription will be considered unsuccessful, and the Management Company will not issue beneficiary certificates to the subscriber.

(vii.) Conditions for subscription cancellation

When a subscriber tends to cancel a subscription application, they must complete a "Cash Subscription Cancellation Application Form" and instruct the participating securities firm to cancel the application through the ETF trading operation transmission platform. The participating securities firm must notify the Management Company before the submission deadline on the subscription application date. After this deadline, the subscriber cannot make changes or cancel the application, unless agreed upon by the Management Company.

(viii.) Subscription application results

The Management Company should verify the advance total subscription amount received from the participating securities firm to determine whether the subscription application is successful or not. The results should be communicated to the ETF trading operation transmission platform on the same day as the subscription application, providing the participating securities firm with the relevant information for inquiry.

(ix.) Handling when the Management Company does not accept subscriptions

The Management Company has the discretion to decide whether to accept subscription applications for the Fund's beneficiary certificates. However, if the Management Company decides not to accept a subscription, they must notify the participating securities firm on the same day the subscription application is received.

(IX.) Redemption of beneficiary certificates

- i. The Fund redemption procedure, location, and deadline

(Note: This English translation is provided for reference only and might not exactly reflect the true meaning and full text of the original language.)

- (i.) The Management Company should handle the redemption operations according to the Fund's "Operational Guidelines." From the Fund's listing date (inclusive) onwards, beneficiaries may instruct participating securities firms to apply with the Management Company for the redemption of the Fund's beneficiary units according to the procedures specified in the Trust Deed, in exchange for the total redemption amount to be paid to the beneficiaries. Participating securities firms may also submit redemption applications on their own behalf. Based on professional judgment, the Management Company may refuse to process redemptions under special circumstances to reduce the risk of inappropriate fluctuations in the fund's net value and to ensure the rights and interests of other beneficiaries and the safety of the Fund. However, if the Management Company does not accept a redemption, it should handle the matter according to the provisions outlined in the Fund's "Operational Guidelines."
- (ii.) Beneficiaries, either directly (if the beneficiary is also the participating securities firm) or if through a participating securities firm, submits a redemption application to the Management Company, they should complete the "Cash Redemption Application Form" and related documents according to the regulations of the participating securities firm, enabling the firm to handle the redemption process accordingly. The participating securities firm must then input the redemption application data into the ETF trading operation transmission platform and transmit the information from the "Cash Redemption Application Form" to the Management Company, following the procedures specified in the fund's "Operational Guidelines."
- (iii.) Redemption base
 - 1. The Fund's redemption base is 500,000 beneficiary units. The number of beneficiary unit for each redemption must be the redemption base or a multiple thereof.
 - 2. The net asset value of each redemption base, representing a certain number of beneficiary units, on any business day should be equal to the total net asset value of the fund divided by the total number of issued beneficiary units, multiplied by the number of beneficiary units represented by each redemption base.
 - 3. If the Management Company deems it necessary, it may, after reporting to the industry association, adjust the number of beneficiary units represented by each redemption base for the Fund.
- (iv.) When a beneficiary applies to redeem the Fund's beneficiary certificates, the redemption request can include the beneficiary certificates held by the beneficiary on the redemption application date, certificates in transit from ordinary trades conducted on the day before the redemption application date, and/or borrowed certificates. However, these certificates must be delivered to the Fund within the timeframe specified by the fund's "Operational Guidelines." Additionally, the delivery and related operations of the redeemed beneficiary certificates to the fund should comply with the regulations set by the central securities depository enterprise in the Fund's registration location.
- (v.) Submission deadline for applications

(Note: This English translation is provided for reference only and might not exactly reflect the true meaning and full text of the original language.)

1. The redemption application for the Fund must be submitted from 9:00 AM to 12:00 PM on each business day.
2. Any redemption applications received after this deadline, unless the beneficiaries can prove they submitted before the cut-off time, will be considered as transactions for the next business day.
3. In the event of force majeure, such as natural disasters or significant events that prevent normal operations, the Management Company may adjust the deadline. However, redemption transactions completed before the adjusted deadline will still be considered valid.

ii. Calculation of redemption amount

- (i.) The Management Company should calculate the total redemption amount based on the redemption base amount or its multiples provided by the beneficiary on the next business day after the redemption date. Also, it should then notify the participating securities firm designated by the beneficiary in accordance with relevant regulations.
- (ii.) The formula for calculating the total redemption amount for each redemption base amount is as follows:

Total redemption amount = Redemption amount - Redemption service charge - Redemption transaction fee

1. $\text{Redemption amount} = \text{Beneficiary units represented per repurchase basis} \times (\text{The Fund's net asset value on the redemption date} / \text{Number of outstanding beneficiary units of beneficiary certificates of the Fund on the redemption date})$
2. Redemption service charge = the Management Company may charge a redemption service charge for each redemption application. Redemption service charge is not included in the sub-fund's assets. The applicable fee rate may be adjusted by the Management Company based on the Fund's sales strategy, while the redemption service charge per beneficiary unit must not exceed 2% of the net asset value per beneficiary unit. Currently, the redemption service charge is TWD5,000 per subscription base unit (including the redemption processing fee charged by TDCC and excluding the service charge charged by participating securities firms).
3. $\text{Redemption transaction fee} = \text{Redemption amount} \times \text{Redemption transaction fee rate}$

Currently, the Fund's redemption transaction fee rate is 0.4% (Note). The abovementioned redemption transaction fee rate may be adjusted according to the condition of the securities market. The rate is capped at 2%. The rules specified in the latest prospectus shall apply subsequently.

(Note) The Fund's redemption transaction fee rates are calculated based on the rates and tax rate announced by Taiwan's securities and futures markets, which include but are not limited to the brokerage fee of Taiwan securities dealers ranging from 0.1% to 0.1425% (based on market rates), brokerage fee of Taiwan futures dealers ranging from 0.005% to 0.015% (based on market rates), futures transaction tax of 0.002% and securities transaction tax of 0.1% to 0.3%. The redemption transaction fee rate of the Fund will be adjusted according to the stock or futures positions held or traded in the Fund's investment portfolio.

iii. Redemption failure

The beneficiary must deliver the beneficiary certificates within the timeframe specified by the fund's "Operating Guidelines" or by the Management Company. If the certificates are not delivered within the stipulated period, the redemption will be considered failed, and the Management Company will not provide the total redemption amount. The beneficiary must also instruct the participating securities firm to transfer the administrative processing fee to the Fund's designated account within two (2) business days after the redemption date. The administrative processing fee is included in the Fund's assets and is calculated according to the provisions set out in the latest prospectus.

The calculation standards for the aforementioned administrative processing fee are as follows:

If the net asset value of the Fund on the next business day after the redemption date is less than the net asset value on the redemption date, the formula for calculating the administrative processing fee is as follows:

T : redemption date

$T+1 \text{ net value} < T \text{ net value}$

Administrative processing fee = redemption amount \times 2%

If the net asset value of the Fund on the next business day after the redemption date is more than (or equal to) the net asset value on the redemption date, the formula for calculating the administrative processing fee is as follows:

T : redemption date

$T+1 \text{ net value} \geq T \text{ net value}$

Administrative processing fee = redemption amount \times [2%+ (T+1 net value of the Fund - T net value of the Fund / T net value of the Fund)]

iv. Payment timing and methods for redemption amount

Unless otherwise specified in the Trust Deed, the Management Company shall, within three (3) business days from the business day following the redemption date, instruct the Fund Custodian to pay the total redemption amount (without interest) to the beneficiaries via a registered, crossed, non-endorsable, non-transferable instruments or remittances. The fees for processing the payment, registered mail, remittance charges, and other necessary expenses may be deducted from the total redemption amount.

v. Reissuance of beneficiary certificates

The Fund's beneficiary certificates are issued in non-physical form, and no physical beneficiary certificates are printed. Therefore, there is no reissuance of beneficiary certificates.

vi. Circumstances for redemption cancellation

When a beneficiary intends to cancel a redemption application, he/she/it must complete a "Cash Redemption Cancellation Application Form" and instruct the participating securities firm to cancel the application with the Management Company through the ETF trading operation transmission platform. The participating securities firm must notify the Management Company before the submission deadline on the redemption application date. After this deadline, the beneficiary cannot make changes or cancel the application, unless agreed upon by the Management Company.

vii. Redemption application results

The Management Company should verify the contents of the "Cash Redemption Application Form" submitted by the participating securities firm, to determine whether the redemption application is successful or not. The results should be communicated to the ETF trading operation transmission platform on the same day as the redemption application, providing the participating securities firm with the relevant information for inquiry.

viii. Rejection or suspension of subscription or redemption applications; suspension of calculation of actual total subscription amount, total subscription amount differences, and redemption amount, delayed delivery of beneficiary certificates to be delivered upon subscription and total redemption amount.

(i.) The Management Company has the authority to decide whether to accept subscription or redemption applications for the Fund. The Management Company must reject or temporarily suspend the acceptance of applications for subscription or redemption of the Fund upon the order of the FSC or in any of the following circumstances:

1. In the presence of any of the circumstances listed in item 3 below;
2. If, after professional assessment, the Management Company believes there is a risk that it will be unable to buy or sell the securities or futures positions or quantities required to meet the needs of the subscriber or beneficiary for their subscriptions or redemptions;
3. From the announcement of the income distribution amount per beneficiary unit until the ex-dividend date (excluding that date), the Management Company has the right to refuse to accept subscriptions;
4. In the presence of any of other special circumstances.

1. Suspend the calculation of the actual total subscription amount and total subscription amount differences, and delay the delivery of all or part of the beneficiary certificates;
2. Not to suspend the calculation of the actual total subscription amount and total subscription amount differences, only to delay the payment of all or part of the beneficiary certificates;
3. Suspend the calculation of the redemption amount and delay the payment of all or part of the redemption amount;
4. Not to suspend the calculation of the total redemption amount, only to defer payment of all or part of the total redemption amount.

(iii.) The acts of the Management Company as described in the aforementioned 2. shall be based on any of the following circumstances, unless they are due to the order of the FSC:

1. The TWSE, Taiwan Futures Exchange (the "TAIFEX"), or the TPEx ceases

(Note: This English translation is provided for reference only and might not exactly reflect the true meaning and full text of the original language.)

trading due to reasons other than regular holidays;

2. Interruption in communication typically used;
 3. The centralized securities depository enterprise in the Fund's registration location is unable to perform the book entry transfer or cancellation of beneficiary certificates;
 4. The weight of any component stock of the benchmark index suspended from trading on any business day equals to or exceeds 20% of the total weight of the benchmark index;
 5. The index provider suddenly fails to provide the benchmark index or terminates the index licensing agreement;
 6. Other special circumstances preventing the acceptance of subscription or redemption requests, the calculation of the actual total subscription and redemption amount, or the delivery of beneficiary certificates and redemption amount.
- (iv.) On the next business day after the cessation of the circumstances described in item 1 and 2 that lead to the suspension of subscription or redemption applications for the Fund, suspension of calculations, or delay in payments, the Management Company should promptly resume the acceptance of subscription or redemption applications, resume calculations or payment procedures, and report this to the FSC.
- (v.) For subscriptions where the calculation of the actual total subscription amount, subscription amount differences, and redemption amount was suspended according to the provisions of item 2 above, the calculation of actual subscription amount, subscription amount differences, redemption amount, and the beneficiary certificates to be delivered shall be based on the cash subscription/redemption list announced on the first business day after the resumption of calculations. . The Management Company, subscribers, and beneficiaries must also adhere to the subscription or redemption application submitted on the resumption calculation date, and deliver the actual subscription amount, redemption amount, or beneficiary certificates within the stipulated period as per the Operational Guidelines.
- (vi.) For cases where the payment of all or part of the redemption amount is delayed in accordance with the provisions of item 2 above, and if the calculation of the actual total subscription amount and redemption amount has not been suspended, starting from resumption of delivery of total subscription amount, the total redemption amount shall be paid based on the amount calculated by the Management Company on the original calculation date, with payment postponed for the actual number of days of delay announced by the Management Company. If the Management Company delays the payment of the redemption amount as described, beneficiaries may also delay the delivery of the Fund's beneficiary certificates according to the actual number of days of delay announced by the Management Company, and must proceed in accordance with the relevant regulations of the securities exchange or centralized securities depository enterprise.
- (vii.) The suspension and resumption of the acceptance of subscription or redemption applications, the suspension and resumption of the calculation of the actual total subscription amount and redemption amount, and the delay and resumption of the delivery of beneficiary certificates and total redemption amount mentioned in this paragraph shall be announced in accordance with the provisions specified in Article 34 of the Fund's Trust Deed.

- ix. To cover the payment of the total redemption amount or to handle the settlement of securities, the Fund may, as per the FSC's regulations, obtain short-term loans from financial institutions through the Management Company. The Fund Custodian shall enter into a loan agreement with the lending financial institution on behalf of the Fund's dedicated account. The following provisions must be observed, and if amended by relevant laws or regulations, the revised provisions shall prevail.
 - (i.) The loan counterparties are limited to domestic and foreign financial institutions authorized to engage in lending activities, and may also include the Fund's Custodian.
 - (ii.) The loan period for paying the redemption total amount is limited to thirty (30) business days; the loan period for handling securities settlement is limited to fourteen (14) business days.
 - (iii.) The interest and related expenses incurred from the loan shall be borne by the Fund's assets.

comply with the Regulations Governing Book-Entry Operations for Centrally Deposited Securities and the related provisions of the centralized securities depository enterprise.

2. The Fund does not print physical securities representing beneficial rights, so certification is not required.
 3. All beneficiary certificates of the Fund are issued in non-physical form, so beneficiaries may not request to retrieve physical certificates.
 4. The rights and obligations between the Management Company and the Taiwan Depository & Clearing Corporation ("TDCC") shall be governed by the account opening agreement and the open-end beneficiary certificate payment/collection agreement signed by both parties.
 5. Before the Fund is listed, the Management Company shall submit the beneficiary information to the TDCC for registration.

However, if the beneficiary subscribes through a non-discretionary monetary trust or wealth management account of the fund sales agent, the beneficiary certificates may be registered in a book-entry account opened under that specific account with the TDCC.

For details, please refer to [I. Fund Overview] (VIII). i and [I. Fund Overview] (VIII). ii.

(V.) Subscription of beneficiary units from the Fund's Listing Date

- i. Unless otherwise specified by the competent authority or the stock exchange, the Management Company shall, starting from one business day before the Fund's listing date, determine and announce the "Cash Subscription/Redemption List" for the following business day after the net asset value of the Fund is calculated and completed every business day. Such information shall be publicly announced on the Management Company's website.
- ii. From the listing date, subscribers may, on any business day, appoint participating securities firms to submit subscription applications to the Management Company in accordance with the procedures specified in the Trust Deed and Operational Guidelines. Participating securities firms may also make subscriptions on their own behalf. The Management Company has the authority to decide whether to accept the subscription.

If the Management Company decides not to accept a subscription, it must handle the matter in accordance with the relevant provisions of the Operational Guidelines.

- iii. The actual total subscription amount for each subscription by a subscriber consists of the actual subscription amount plus the subscription transaction fees and subscription service charge set by the Management Company. The Management Company will calculate the total amount that the subscriber is actually required to pay on the business day following the subscription date. The calculation standards for the subscription transaction fees and subscription processing fees shall be handled according to the latest prospectus.
- iv. Subscribers must pay the advance total subscription amount, as disclosed in the Management Company's "Cash Subscription/Redemption List" for each business day, based on the subscription base or its multiples. The advance subscription amount must be deposited into the Fund's designated account on the subscription date. The Management Company will then calculate the difference between the actual total subscription amount and the advance subscription amount. If the difference is positive, the subscriber must pay the difference to the Fund within the deadline specified in the Operational Guidelines to complete the subscription process. If the difference is negative, the Management Company must refund the difference to the subscriber in accordance with the relevant provisions of the Operational Guidelines.
- v. Subscribers may appoint participating securities firms to handle the subscription of the Fund's beneficiary certificates. The Management Company agree that participating securities firms may charge a handling fee for each subscription application to cover the costs of processing subscriptions. The handling fees are not included in the Fund's assets and are capped by the operational guidelines.
- vi. The Management Company may charge a subscription service charge for each subscription. The subscription service charge of the Fund's beneficiary certificates is not included in the Fund's assets. The total of the subscription service charge and the transaction processing fee charged by participating securities firms per beneficial unit may not exceed 2% of the net asset value per beneficiary unit of the Fund. The subscription service charge for the Fund is determined according to the latest prospectus.
- vii. After a subscriber submits a subscription request, they must pay the advance total subscription amount, total subscription amount differences, and any other payables under the Trust Deed as per the subscription base or its integral multiple within the deadline specified in the Operational Guidelines. Failure to do so will be considered a failed subscription. The Management Company shall, in accordance with the Operational Guidelines, deduct administrative processing fees, remittance fees and other amounts that the applicant is required to bear according to the Trust Deed or Operational Guidelines from the advance total subscription amount paid by the failed subscriber on the subscription date. The remaining amount without interest will be paid to the subscriber's designated remittance account by the Fund Custodian within three (3) business days starting from the next business day after the failed subscription. The standard for the payment of administrative processing fee shall be handled according to the latest prospectus.
- viii. Subscribers submit their subscription requests to the Management Company, while the Management Company has the discretion on whether to accept the subscription for beneficiary units. Unless otherwise agreed upon by the Management Company, requests may not be withdrawn after the deadline specified in the Operational Guidelines.

The refund shall be made through a registered, crossed, non-endorsable, non-negotiable note or remittance in favor of the subscribers. The interest shall be calculated from the day after the Fund Custodian receives the subscription amount until the day before the refund is made, based on the Fund Custodian's savings deposit interest rate. The interest shall be rounded to the nearest New Taiwan Dollar (TWD), with amounts less than one TWD rounded up.
- iv. If the Fund is not established, the Management Company, fund sales agents, and Fund Custodian shall not be entitled to any compensation. All expenses paid for the Fund shall be borne severally by the Management Company, fund sales agents, and Fund Custodian. The reference price for auction trading for the initial public offering of the Fund's beneficiary certificates shall be based on the latest net asset value per beneficiary unit calculated from the Fund's income as of the last business day before the listing as reference, and shall be handled according to the regulations of the TWSE. The fee amount shall be calculated according to the standards specified in the Operational Guidelines.

The audit was conducted by us in accordance with the Regulations Governing Auditing and Attestation of Financial Statements by Certified Public Accountant and auditing standards. The responsibilities of the certified public accountant under these standards are further described in the "Certified Public Accountant's Responsibilities for the Audit of the Financial Report" section. The personnel of the accounting firm that the certified public accountant works for who are subject to independence requirements have maintained detachment and independence from KGI Securities Investment Trust Co., Ltd. in accordance with the Code of Professional Conduct for Accountants, and have fulfilled other responsibilities under such Code of Conduct. The certified public accountant believes that sufficient and appropriate audit evidence has been obtained to provide a basis for the audit opinion.

Key audit matters

Key audit matters are those matters that, in our professional judgment, were of most significance in our audit of KGI Securities Investment Trust Co., Ltd.'s financial report for the fiscal year 2023. These matters were addressed in the context of the overall audit of the financial report and in forming our opinion thereon. We do not express a separate opinion on these matters. The key audit matters that we have determined shall be communicated in the audit report are as follows:

Revenue recognition

For details on the accounting policy for revenue recognition, please refer to Note 4 (12) Revenue Recognition of the financial report.

Key audit matter description

KGI Securities Investment Trust Co., Ltd.'s primary revenue comes from management fees for providing management services to securities investment trust funds and discretionary investment mandate accounts. Given the significant impact of revenue on the financial report, revenue recognition is one of the key evaluation matters in the audit of KGI Securities Investment Trust Co., Ltd.'s financial report.

Audit procedures performed

The primary audit procedures performed by the certified public accountant for the above key audit matter included understanding the revenue recognition process and sampling relevant contracts to recalculate management fee revenue. These procedures were conducted to assess whether the revenue recognition of KGI Securities Investment Trust Co., Ltd. is reasonable.

Management team's and the governance unit's responsibilities for the financial report

It is the responsibility of the management team to prepare the financial report that are properly expressed in accordance with the provisions of the Business Entity Accounting Act and the Regulations on Business Entity Accounting Handling related to financial accounting, as well as the IFRSs, IASs, interpretations, and explanatory announcements recognized and issued by the FSC, and to maintain the necessary internal controls related to the preparation of financial reports to ensure that the financial reports are free of material misrepresentations that may lead to fraud or error.

In preparing the financial report, management team is responsible for assessing KGI Securities Investment Trust Co. Ltd.'s ability to continue as a going concern, disclosure of related matters, and adopting the going concern basis of accounting unless the management team either intends to liquidate KGI Securities Investment Trust Co. Ltd. or to cease the operations, or has no realistic alternative but to do so.

The governance unit of KGI Securities Investment Trust Co., Ltd. (including the supervisor) is responsible for overseeing the financial reporting process.

Certified public accountant's responsibilities for the audit of the financial report

Our objectives to audit the financial report are to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial report as a whole is free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error, and to issue an audit report. Reasonable assurance is a high level of assurance, while is not a guarantee that an audit conducted in accordance with the ISAs will always detect a material misstatement in the financial report when it exists. Misstatements can arise from fraud or error and are considered material if, individually or in the aggregate, the amount could reasonably be expected to influence the economic decisions of users taken on the basis of these financial report.

As part of an audit in accordance with the ISAs, we exercise professional judgment and maintain professional skepticism throughout the audit. We also conduct the following works:

1. Identify and assess the risks of material misstatement of the financial report, whether due to fraud or error, design and perform procedures responsive to those risks assessed, and obtain audit evidence that is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our opinion. The risk of not detecting a material misstatement resulting from fraud is higher than for one resulting from error, as fraud may involve collusion, forgery, intentional omissions, misrepresentations, or the breach of internal control.
2. Obtain necessary understanding of internal control relevant to the audit in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the KGI Securities Investment Trust Co., Ltd.'s internal control.

If we identify significant uncertainties in terms of such events or conditions, they must highlight in the audit report about the relevant disclosures in the financial report to users of the financial report or, if the disclosures are deemed inadequate, modify the audit opinion accordingly. Our conclusion is based on the audit evidence obtained as of the audit report date. However, future events or conditions may arise that could affect KGI Securities Investment Trust Co., Ltd.'s ability to continue its business as a going concern.

5. Evaluate the overall presentation, structure and content of the financial report, including the disclosures, and whether the financial report represents the underlying transactions and events in a manner that achieves fair presentation.

We have determined the key audit matters for the audit of KGI Securities Investment Trust Co., Ltd.'s financial report for the fiscal year 2023 based on the matters communicated with the governance unit. In the audit report, we address these matters, unless disclosure of certain matters is prohibited by the laws or regulations, or, in extremely rare circumstances, we decide not to communicate specific matters in the audit report because the expected negative impact of such communication is reasonably anticipated to outweigh the public interest it would serve.

[Appendix 2] Calculation Standards for the Net Asset Value of Securities Investment Trust Funds

Revised and Issued by the Securities Investment Trust and Consulting Association of the Republic of China on September 3, 2021 with reference no. Zhong-Xin-Gu-Zi-1100052122

- I. The calculation standards are established in accordance with Paragraph 2, Article 28 of the Securities Investment Trust and Consulting Act.
- II. Calculation method for the asset value of money market funds and similar funds: The asset value is calculated based on the purchase cost plus accrued interest up to the calculation date and amortization of any premium or discount. For bonds with call or put options, the amortization period for premium or discount is based on the bond's maturity date. For assets purchased by funds similar to money market funds before the transformation record date, the purchase cost shall be the carrying amount as of the transformation record date. In addition, for the settlement amount paid to the seller with respect to bonds purchased by funds similar to money market funds, the withholding tax for accrued interest calculated based on the bond's face value and interest rate during the holding period shall be amortized over the remaining maturity period of the bond.
- III. The calculation of the asset value of index funds and exchange traded funds shall be conducted in accordance with the securities investment trust deed.
- IV. Calculation method for the asset value of ETF-linked funds: For a master fund linked to single ETF, the asset value is based on the net asset value per unit of the ETF on the calculation date.
- V. The asset value of other securities investment trust funds shall be calculated according to the following provisions:
 - (I) Stocks
 - I. For listed stocks, shall use the closing price from the centralized trading market on the calculation date; for stocks listed on the TPEx, use the closing price from the automated trade matching system of the TPEx on the calculation date; for stocks of companies with listing or TPEx-listing contracts approved by the Financial Supervisory Commission (FSC) but traded on the emerging stock market, use the weighted average trading price from the TPEx's electronic bidding system for emerging stocks on the calculation date. For unlisted and not TPEx-listed stocks (including emerging stocks where the listing or TPEx-listing contracts have not been approved by the FSC) and private placement stocks of listed, TPEx-listed, and emerging stock companies, use the purchase cost. If an emerging stock's where the listing or TPEx-listing contract has been approved by the FSC is subsequently canceled, use the weighted average trading price on the approved cancellation date for valuation. However, if there is objective evidence indicating a reduction in the investment value, impairment losses shall be recognized. If otherwise specified in the securities investment trust deed, follow such provisions. For subscribing to the same type of stocks in capital increases or underwritings of listed, TPEx-listed, and emerging stocks where the listing or TPEx-listing contracts have not been approved by the FSC, the above provisions shall apply. For subscribing to stocks in initial listings or TPEx-listing (including state-owned enterprises not required to be listed on the emerging stock market), use the purchase cost prior to the stock's official public trading.
 - II. For stocks suspended from trading due to financial difficulties, starting from the stock's trading suspension date, the calculation shall be based on the closing price from the centralized trading market or TPEx's automated trade matching system on the last trading day before the suspension, comparing this closing price with the net worth per share provided in the most recent financial report published before the suspension. If the closing price is lower than the net worth per share, use the closing price as the valuation standard. If the closing price is higher than the net worth per share, use the stock price adjusted to the net worth based on the maximum price drop allowed under the current laws and regulations for each trading day. The price calculated based on the above requirement shall be adjusted at one time to the net worth per share provided in the most recent financial report published after the suspension began according to the laws and regulations, but not exceeding the closing price on the last trading day before trading suspension. If the latest financial report is issued with a non-standard review report by the accountant, use the lower net worth per share from the latest two financial reports published according to the laws and regulations.

- III. If the trading volume of a stock on the first trading day after a trading suspension exceeds the average daily trading volume of the month prior to the trading suspension, and the closing price on that first day is higher than the maximum price drop allowed under the current laws and regulations, then from that day onwards, the stock shall be valued based on the calculation standards applicable to listed and TPEX-listed stocks.
- IV. If the trading volume on the first trading day after the trading suspension does not meet the standard in the preceding provision, or if the closing price still reflects the maximum allowable drop price, then the stock will not revert to the calculation standards for listed and TPEX-listed stocks until the trading volume meets the standard in the preceding provision and the closing price exceeds the maximum price drop allowed under the current laws and regulations. Before these conditions are met, the stock's price will be calculated daily using the highest allowable price increase or price decrease based on the price from the last trading day before the stock starts trading, until the price approaches the closing price on the calculation date.
- V. For stocks suspended from trading due to financial difficulties that are eventually delisted and cease trading after the suspension period, the stock shall be valued at zero. The value will be adjusted to the sale price when the stock is sold.
- VI. For stocks of a company that ceases to be listed (or TPEX-listed) due to a merger, if the company is absorbed in the merger, the shares of the extinguished company held shall be converted into shares of the surviving company according to the share exchange ratio, starting from the date the extinguished company's stock ceases to be traded. During the trading suspension period, which is the eight (8) business days prior to (but not including) the merger record date, the value shall be calculated based on the closing price of the surviving company's stock on the centralized trading market or the automated trade matching system of the TPEX. From the merger record date onwards, the valuation shall follow the provisions in Item 1 of this paragraph.
- VII. For stocks of a company that ceases to be listed (or TPEX-listed) due to a merger where a new company is established, during the eight (8) business days prior to (but not including) the merger record date, the shares of the extinguished company held shall be valued based on the closing price of the extinguished company's stock on the centralized trading market or the automated trade matching system of the TPEX on the last trading day. On the listing date of the shares of the new company, the shares of the extinguished company shall be converted into shares of the new company according to the share exchange ratio and the value of these shares shall then be calculated based on the closing price of the new company's stock on the centralized trading market or the automated trade matching system of the TPEX on the calculation date.
- VIII. For stocks of a company that ceases to be listed (or TPEX-listed) due to a reduction in capital and spin-off, during the trading suspension period before the new capital-reduced stocks begin trading, the value of the original capital-reduced stocks held shall be based on the closing price of those stocks on the centralized trading market or the automated trade matching system of the TPEX on the last trading day. The carrying amount of the original capital-reduced stocks shall be adjusted based on the capital reduction ratio or relative fair value and allocated to the carrying cost of the new capital-reduced stocks. The new capital-reduced stocks shall be valued according to the provisions in Item 1 of this paragraph from the day the new capital-reduced stocks start to be traded on the centralized market or OTC market.

- IX. For stocks bought on margin or sold short: For listed stocks, use the closing price from the centralized trading market on the calculation date. For TPEX-listed stocks, use the closing price from the automated trade matching system of the TPEX on the calculation date.
- X. The term "financial difficulties" refers to the following situations affecting the stock-issuing company:
- (i) The company fails to announce or file its financial reports or financial forecasts within the deadline required by the laws and regulations.
 - (ii) The company's stock is restricted from transfer due to court-ordered reorganization.
 - (iii) The company's financial statements are not prepared according to generally accepted accounting principles or receive a disclaimer of opinion or an adverse opinion from auditors.
 - (iv) The company violates regulations governing disclosure of material information of listed (or TPEX-listed) companies, and the situation is severe enough to necessitate suspension of trading.
 - (v) The company's construction projects experience significant delays or major breaches of contractual agreements.
 - (vi) The company has insufficient funds leading to bounced checks and fails to correct the situation within the specified deadline.
 - (vii) The company is unable to repay maturing debts and fails to reach an agreement with creditors within the specified deadline.
 - (viii) The company experiences other financial difficulties that lead to its stock being suspended from trading by the TWSE or the TPEX.
- (II) Beneficiary certificates: For listed (or TPEX-listed) beneficiary certificates, use the closing price from the centralized trading market or the TPEX on the calculation date. For non-listed (or non-TPEX-listed) beneficiary certificates, use the net asset value per unit as announced on the website specified in the securities investment trust deed on the calculation date.
- (III) Taiwan depositary receipts (TDRs): For listed TDRs, use the closing price from the centralized trading market on the calculation date. For TPEX-listed TDRs, use the closing price from the automated trade matching system of the TPEX on the calculation date.
- (IV) Convertible bonds:
- I. For listed (or TPEX-listed) convertible bonds, use the closing price on the calculation date plus accrued interest up to the calculation date. After applying for conversion, the valuation shall be based on the stock or bond conversion rights certificate, with the valuation method following the provisions of Paragraph 1.

- II. For convertible bonds that are suspended from trading or delisted (from being listed or TPEX-listed), use the closing price on the last trading day of the bond, amortizing any premium or discount based on the bond's remaining term according to relevant regulations, and plus accrued interest up to the calculation date. However, if there is evidence of impairment in the investment's value, impairment losses shall be recognized. Suspended convertible bonds shall be valued according to the method specified in Paragraph 1 upon resumption of trading.
 - III. If a suspended convertible bond is classified as a problematic bond under the "Rules for Handling Problematic Corporate Bonds," it shall be handled according to those rules.
- (V) Government bonds: For listed bonds, the closing price on the calculation date plus the interest receivable as of the calculation date; for TPEX-listed bonds, the price of the bonds converted from the price derived from the average yield-weighted trading price of the electronic bond trading system of the TPEX on the calculation date plus the interest receivable as of the calculation date; if there is no trading in the electronic bond trading system on the calculation date, the weighted average of the trading prices of the bonds negotiated with securities firms shall be used as the basis plus the interest receivable as of the calculation date. If there is no transaction record for both of the above methods and the maturity date of the bond is one year or more, the value is calculated by comparing the previous day's published yield rate of the bond with the yield rate of the Taiwan Government Bond Index published by the TPEX. If the yield rate is within 10 bps (inclusive) above or below the yield rate of the bonds disclosed by the Taiwan Government Bond Index published by the TPEX, then the price of the bond converted based on the previous day's published yield rate will be used for valuation, plus the interest receivable accrued up to the calculation date. If the yield rate falls outside the range of 10 bps above or below the yield rate of the bonds disclosed in the Taiwan Government Bond Index published by the TPEX, then the price of the bond converted by the yield rate of the bonds disclosed in the Taiwan Government Bond Index published by the TPEX shall be used for valuation, plus the interest receivable accrued up to the calculation date. If there is no transaction record for both of the above methods and the maturity date of the bond is less than one year, the fair price of each tranche of the bonds published by the TPEX shall be used for valuation, plus the interest receivable accrued up to the calculation date.
- (VI) Financial bonds, ordinary corporate bonds, other bonds, financial asset securitization beneficiary securities, asset-backed securities, and real estate investment trust beneficiary securities:
- I. For bonds purchased on or before December 31, 2005 and no trench of bonds was sold on or after January 1, 2006:
 - (i) For listed bonds: Use the closing price on the calculation date plus any interest receivable accrued up to the calculation date.
 - (ii) For TPEX-listed bonds with a fixed coupon rate: Use the weighted average trading price negotiated with securities firms on the calculation date, plus any interest receivable accrued up to the calculation date.
 - (iii) For TPEX-listed bonds with a floating coupon rate: Use the weighted average trading price negotiated with securities firms on the calculation date, plus any interest receivable accrued up to the calculation date. If no such trading price is available on the calculation date, shall use the carrying amount from the previous day, adjust for the difference between the carrying amount and the face value by amortization, plus any interest receivable accrued up to the calculation date.

- (iv) For non-listed and not TPEX-listed bonds: Use the face value plus any interest receivable accrued up to the calculation date, and amortize any premium or discount according to the relevant regulations.
 - (v) For bonds that are suspended from trading or that have been delisted (from being listed or TPEX-listed): Use the closing price on the last trading day before delisting in the centralized trading market or the weighted average trading price negotiated with securities firms on the last trading day before OTC delisting as the cost. Amortize any premium or discount based on the remaining term of the bond according to relevant regulations plus any interest receivable accrued up to the calculation date. For trading suspended bonds, the valuation shall follow the provisions in Item 1 of this sub-paragraph upon resumption of trading.
- II. For bonds purchased before December 31, 2005 and where trench of bonds was sold after January 1, 2006, as well as bonds purchased after January 1, 2006:
- (i) For listed and TPEX-listed bonds with fixed coupon rates, the closing yield rate or the weighted average traded yield rate negotiated with the securities firms on the calculation date shall be compared with the reference yield rate of the corporate bonds published by the TPEX. If the yield rate is within 20 bps (inclusive) above or below the reference yield rate of the corporate bonds published by the TPEX, the closing yield rate or the weighted average traded yield rate negotiated with the securities firms shall be used for valuation plus the interest receivable accrued up to the calculation date. If the yield rate falls outside the range of 20 bps above or below the reference yield rate of the corporate bonds published by the TPEX, then the reference yield rate of the corporate bonds published by the TPEX plus or minus 20 bps, plus the interest receivable accrued up to the date of calculation. For non-listed and not TPEX-listed bonds, the reference yield rate of the corporate bonds published by TPEX, plus the interest receivable accrued up to the date of calculation, shall be used for valuation. The following principles shall be adhered to when comparing the yield rate against the reference yield rate of the corporate bonds published by TPEX mentioned above:
 - 1. If the maturity of a bond is different from the maturity of the reference yield rate of corporate bonds published by the TPEX, the reference yield rate of the corporate bonds is calculated by the linear interpolation method. However, if a bond is a serial bond, the weighted average maturity period is used to calculate the remaining maturity period of the bond; if the maturity period of a bond is less than one month, the maturity period of the bond will be one month; if the legal maturity date of the securities benefiting from securitization of financial assets is different from the scheduled maturity date, the scheduled maturity date shall prevail; the maturity period of bonds with call rights and put rights, the maturity date shall be the maturity date of the bond.
 - 2. The credit ratings of the bonds correspond to the credit ratings of the reference yield rates of corporate bonds published by the TPEX are as follows:
 - (1) Any + or - in the credit ratings of the bonds will be deleted (e.g., "A-" or "A+" will be treated as "A").
 - (2) For bonds with a single guarantor bank, the credit rating of the guarantor bank shall prevail; for bonds with joint guarantor banks, the credit rating of the sponsoring bank shall prevail; for bonds secured by assets, they are deemed to be unsecured, and for unsecured bonds, the credit rating of the issuing company shall prevail; for subordinated bonds, the credit rating of the bond itself shall prevail; however, if the subordinated bond does not have any credit rating, the credit rating of the issuing company lowered by two levels shall prevail; if the issuing company has different credit ratings, the lowest credit rating shall prevail.

- (3) The credit ratings of beneficiary securities of financial asset securitization, asset-based securities and real estate investment trust beneficiary securities are based on the credit ratings of the beneficiary securities themselves.

- (ii) For TPEX-listed bonds with a floating coupon rate, it will be handled in accordance with the provisions of Item 2, Paragraph 15 of this Article.

III. If the bond is classified as a problematic bond under the "Rules for Handling Problematic Corporate Bonds," it shall be handled according to those rules.

- (VII) Bonds sold under repurchase agreement and short-term bills (including beneficiary securities and asset-backed securities with a maturity of one year or less): The valuation is based on the purchase cost plus the interest receivable accrued at the purchase interest rate up to the calculation date. However, if there is objective evidence showing that the investment value has been impaired, an impairment loss shall be recognized.

- (VIII) Call (put) warrants: For listed warrants, the valuation is based on the closing price on the calculation date from the centralized trading market; for TPEX-listed warrants, the valuation is based on the closing price from the automated trade matching system of the TPEX on the calculation date.

- (IX) Foreign-listed/TPEX-listed stocks: The valuation is based on the most recent closing price received within the business hours of the securities investment trust enterprise from the securities centralized trading market or securities firm's trading venue on the calculation date. For stocks that are suspended from trading, have not been quoted or traded for a long time, or where market prices do not reflect fair value, the fair price provided by other independent professional institutions consulted by the fund management company, the valuation committee of the parent company of the fund management company's group, or the valuation committee of the fund management company shall be used for valuation. The fund management company shall specify in its internal control system the criteria for the absence of quotations and trading information (e.g., one month, two months) and the reasonable frequency for re-evaluation (e.g., weekly, monthly).

- (X) Foreign bonds: The valuation is based on the most recent price, trading price, bid price, or mid-price on the calculation date obtained from the price information provider specified in the securities investment trust deed, plus accrued interest up to the calculation date. For bonds that are suspended from trading, have not been quoted or traded for a long time, or where market prices do not reflect fair value, the fair price provided by other independent professional institutions consulted by the fund management company, the valuation committee of the parent company of the fund management company's group, or the valuation committee of the fund management company shall be used for valuation. The fund management company shall specify in its internal control system the criteria for the absence of quotations and trading information (e.g., one month, two months) and the reasonable frequency for re-evaluation (e.g., weekly, monthly).

- (XI) Foreign mutual funds:

- I. For listed (or TPEX-listed) funds, the closing price of each centralized trading market or OTC market as of the calculation date obtained from the information company listed in the securities investment trust deed shall be used for valuation. For funds suspended from trading, shall use the fair price provided by the foreign sub-custodian banks, other independent professional institutions consulted by the fund management company, or the valuation committee of the parent company of the fund management company's group for valuation.

- II. For unlisted (or not TPEX-listed) funds, the most recent net worth obtained from a foreign mutual fund company during the business hours of the securities investment trust enterprise on the calculation date shall be used for valuation. For funds suspended from trading, if the net worth notified or published is still available during the suspension period, the notified or published net worth shall be used for valuation. If no net worth is notified or published during the suspension period, the net worth on the business day prior to the suspension shall be used for valuation.
- (XII) Other foreign investment underlying: For listed foreign investment underlying, the closing price from the centralized trading market on the calculation date shall be used for valuation. For unlisted foreign investment underlying, shall calculate the price according to the provisions specified in the relevant securities investment trust deed, investment memorandum, prospectus, or other similar documents for valuation.
- (XIII) Real estate investment trusts (REITs) beneficiary securities: For listed REITs beneficiary securities, the closing price from the centralized trading market on the calculation date shall be used for valuation. For TPEX-listed REITs beneficiary securities, the closing price from the automated trade matching system of the TPEX on the calculation date shall be used for valuation. For unlisted or not TPEX-listed REITs beneficiary securities, the latest net worth published by the trustee institution on the calculation date shall be used for valuation. However, if the securities investment trust deed specifies otherwise, the valuation shall follow those provisions.
- (XIV) Structured bonds:
- I. For bonds purchased on or before December 31, 2005 and no trench of bonds was sold on or after January 1, 2006: The valuation shall be handled according to the provisions of Items 1 and 3, Paragraph 6 of this Article.
 - II. For bonds purchased before December 31, 2005 and where trench of bonds was sold after January 1, 2006, as well as bonds purchased after January 1, 2006: The valuation shall be recalculated at least weekly. The valuation shall base on the average of fair prices provided by three securities firms (including the trading counterparty) or prices provided by an independent valuation institution.
- (XV) Structured time deposits:
- I. For deposits purchased on or before December 31, 2005: The deposit amount plus interest accrued up to the calculation date shall be used for valuation.
 - II. For deposits purchased on or after January 1, 2006: The fair price provided by the trading counterparty shall be used for valuation.
- (XVI) For participation certificates, the most recent closing price of the single linked stock on the centralized trading market or at the securities firm's trading venue available during the securities investment trust enterprise's business hours on the calculation date shall be used for valuation. For the single linked stock of the participation certificates suspended from trading, shall use the fair price provided by the valuation committee of the parent company of the fund management company's group, the valuation committee of the fund management company or other independent valuation institution consulted by the fund management company for valuation.

VI. Domestic and foreign securities related products:

- (I) For those traded on the centralized trading market, the closing price from the centralized trading market on the calculation date shall be used for valuation. For those not traded on the centralized trading market, the price obtained from the price information provider specified in the securities investment trust deed or the price provided by the trading counterparty on the calculation date shall be used for valuation.
- (II) Futures: The settlement price from the futures exchange associated with the type of underlying asset specified in the futures contract on the calculation date shall be used to determine the contract's gains or losses.

For investment in domestic funds investing in one-day futures contracts approved by the FSC and authorized by the Taiwan Futures Exchange for trading Taiwan stock futures and Taiwan index options listed on the Eurex Exchange, the asset value of the fund shall be calculated based on the settlement price on the calculation date, with the valuation performed on the next business day. Forward foreign exchange contracts: For all types of funds, the valuation shall use the settlement exchange rate from the foreign exchange market on the calculation date. However, if there is no forward exchange rate available on the foreign exchange market equivalent to the remaining contract period on the calculation date, a linear interpolation method may be used to determine the rate.

- VII. Except for stocks suspended from trading and stocks of companies that cease to be listed (or TPEX-listed) due to a merger during the trading suspension period due to share exchange specified in Article 5, when there is no closing price, weighted average trading price, price derived from the average yield-weighted trading price, average price, settlement price, most recent price, trading price, bid price, mid-price, reference rate, fair price, average of fair prices, or settlement exchange rate on the calculation date as mentioned in this regulation, then the most recent closing price, weighted average trading price, price derived from the average yield-weighted trading price, average price, settlement price, most recent price, trading price, bid price, mid-price, reference rate, fair price, average of fair prices, or settlement exchange rate shall be used for valuation instead.

[Appendix 3] Thresholds and Handling Procedures for Tolerable Deviations in the Calculation of Net Asset Value of Securities Investment Trust Funds

Thresholds and Handling Procedures for Tolerable Deviations in the Calculation of Net Asset Value of Securities Investment Trust Funds of the Securities Investment Trust and Consulting Association of the Republic of China

Approved by the Financial Supervisory Commission, Executive Yuan, Republic of China (Taiwan) on February 14, 2017 with reference no. Jin-Guan-Zheng-Tou-Zi-1060002879

I. Legal Basis and Purpose

This threshold and the handling procedures are established in accordance with Article 72 of the Regulations Governing Securities Investment Trust Funds.

The net worth of a fund is intended to represent the closest approximation to the fund's true market price. However, the accuracy of the net worth may be affected by various factors such as different trading systems, time differences, exchange rates, and taxation, which may necessitate adjustments to the net worth. In order to protect investors' interests while minimizing overly complex and economically ineffective operational procedures for fund managers, this threshold and handling procedures have been established.

II. Application

When the deviation in the fund's net worth reaches the tolerable deviation threshold specified in Article 3, the securities investment trust enterprise must follow the relevant provisions of this threshold and handling procedures to protect investors. If the deviation does not reach the tolerable deviation threshold specified in Article 3, except in cases where the securities investment trust enterprise has acted with intent or gross negligence and must compensate investors, since the impact is not significant and is within the tolerable range, such deviation may be treated similarly to changes in estimates under generally accepted accounting principles, in order to reduce lengthy and costly announcement operation and procedures. However, records of the fund's accounting adjustments must be kept for reference.

III. The tolerable deviation thresholds for various types of funds are as follows:

- (I). Money market funds: 0.125% (inclusive) of the net worth on the day the deviation occurs;
- (II). Bond funds: 0.25% (inclusive) of the net worth on the day the deviation occurs;
- (III). Equity funds: 0.5% (inclusive) of the net worth on the day the deviation occurs;
- (IV). Balanced funds and multi-asset funds: 0.25% (inclusive) of the net worth on the day the deviation occurs;
- (V). Capital-protected funds, index funds, exchange traded funds, fund of funds, and other types of funds: Each type of funds applies the appropriate rate from the categories listed above based on its classification.

IV. If the adjustment rate of the fund's net worth reaches the tolerable deviation threshold provided in the preceding article, in addition to following the control procedures in Article 6, the securities investment trust enterprise shall calculate the amount of the difference and adjust the fund's net asset value as soon as possible. Unless there are special circumstances, the securities investment trust enterprise shall announce the deviation within 7 business days from the date of discovery of the deviation and complete the payment of shortfall within 20 business days from the date of announcement.

V. If the adjustment rate of the fund's net worth reaches the tolerable deviation threshold provided in Article 3, the handling principles for the payment of shortfall are as follows:

(一) When the net worth is undervalued.

- i. For subscribers: The securities investment trust enterprise shall adjust the accounts accordingly, but this adjustment shall not affect the total subscription amount paid by the beneficiaries.
- ii. For redeemers: The securities investment trust enterprise must transfer the shortfall in redemption payments from the fund's dedicated account to the beneficiaries.
- iii. Example: Please see the table below for an illustration.

Net worth undervalued	In the event of deviation	After adjustment	Illustration
Subscriber	Subscription amount: TWD800 NAV: TWD8 Subscription: 100 units	Subscription amount: TWD800 NAV: TWD10 Subscription: 80 units	Adjustment on accounting will be made without affecting the beneficiary's total subscription amount of TWD800.
Redeemer	Redemption: 100 units NAV: TWD8 Redemption amount: TWD800	Redemption: 100 units NAV: TWD10 Redemption amount: TWD1,000	The redemption amount shall be TWD1,000, so the loss of TWD200 suffered by the beneficiary will be covered by the fund's assets in order to maintain the correct asset value of the Fund.

(二) When the net worth is overvalued.

- i. For subscribers: The securities investment trust enterprise must compensate for the shortfall in the number of units by issuing the additional units to the beneficiaries and adjust the number of units outstanding for the fund.
- ii. For redeemers: The securities investment trust enterprise must make up the excess redemption amount paid to the fund's assets.
- iii. In principle, the securities investment trust enterprise must make up for the losses incurred by the fund due to the benefits received by certain beneficiaries. Once the net worth is recalculated and the amount that the securities investment trust enterprise shall compensate the fund is determined, the securities investment trust enterprise must make up the amount to the fund's assets. Please see the example in the table below:

Net worth overvalued	In the event of deviation	After adjustment	Illustration
Subscriber	Subscription amount: TWD800 NAV: TWD10 Subscription: 80 units	Subscription amount: TWD800 NAV: TWD8 Subscription: 100 units	Adjustment on accounting will be made without affecting the beneficiary's total subscription amount of TWD800.
Redeemer	Redemption: 100 units NAV: TWD10 Redemption amount: TWD1,000	Redemption: 100 units NAV: TWD8 Redemption amount: TWD800	The redemption amount shall be TWD800. The securities investment trust enterprise must make up for the portion of the fund's loss resulting from the amount already paid for redemption, and compensate the fund's assets accordingly.

- VI. When the adjustment ratio of the fund's net asset value reaches the aforementioned tolerable deviation threshold, the securities investment trust enterprise shall execute the following relevant control procedures:
- (I). Notify the FSC, business associations, the fund custodian institution, and the fund's certified public accountant.
 - (II). Calculate the financial impact of the deviation and determine the amount needed to make up for the beneficiaries.
 - (III). Obtain a report from the fund's certified public accountant regarding the handling of the net worth deviation. The report shall include an opinion on the correcting journal entries for the fund's net worth calculation deviation, confirmation of the fund's net worth recalculation, and the amount of loss incurred by the fund/investors.
 - (IV). Submit the accountant's report along with details of the adjustment or supplemental amounts or accounting adjustment content to the FSC for record-keeping.
 - (V). Announce and notify the affected sales agents and beneficiaries of the amount of net worth deviation and the method of compensating for the losses, ensuring proper handling.
 - (VI). Except in special circumstances, the securities investment trust enterprise shall announce the deviation within 7 business days from its discovery of such event and complete the adjustment and payment of difference within 20 business days from the announcement date.

- (VII). The securities investment trust enterprise shall review the corrective action plan, processing steps, internal control responses, and the subsequent handling process to ensure they are reasonable.
 - (VIII). Disclose in the fund's annual financial report the reasonableness of the accountant's correction process for the net worth deviation, including the recalculated net worth, the amount of loss incurred by the fund/investors, and the amount of compensation paid.
- VII. This threshold and handling procedures shall be implemented after being approved by the board of directors of the association and filed with the FSC for record. The same procedure applies to any amendments.
